Local CWA Placed 60 Men At Work In City

Started Work of Widening Foxhall Avenue and Operating Stone Crusher—Field Representative's Assistant Conferred With Local Administration Today—Effort Made To Have Projects Approved.

Work on two projects was started this morning by the local Civil Works Administration, and it was planned to start the woodlot project this afternoon. The projects started were the widening of Foxhall avenue from the railroad crossing to Flatbush avenue, and the operation of the stone crusher. Approximately 60 men were placed at work this morning.

Field Representative Clark, of the State Civil Works Administration, has found it impossible to come to Kingston as yet, but to show his interest in the proposed work here he sent his assistant here this morning who met with Messrs. Henry Forst, A. S. Staples and Nicholas Hogeboom, the local CWA board, and went over a number of proposed projects. It is expected that Mr. Clark may be able to reach Kingston Wednesday.

Mr. Sanborn of Sanborn & Bogert, who made the sewer survey of the city during the Dempsey administration, met with the local CWA at the old armory this morning and went over with the administration proposed sewer projects.

It was expected that the local CWA would send a representative to New York this afternoon or tomorrow to confer with the State CWA over proposed new projects. By doing this about a week's time is saved and the local administration is more than anxious to place as many men at work as possible, and as quickly as possible.

It was expected to start the project of rounding street corners in the city, but a technical delay arose which Mayor Carey is taking steps today to remedy as quickly as possible.

The local administration is exerting every effort to have projects approved so that by the end of the week there will be a substantial number of men at work in Kingston.

There is a certain amount of red tape that has to be cut and which is holding up the plans of the local administration to have projects started.

Bloodshed Hovers As Fear in Louisiana "Kingfish Election"

Armed Citizens, Angry Over Huey P. Long's Indignant Refusal to Call a Primary For Selection of Nominee to Succeed Late Candidate, Ready to Stop Voting.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 5 (AP).—Men with shotguns on their shoulders and pistols on their hips stood ready today to stop the sixth district congressional election in which Senator Huey P. Long seeks to have voters ratify the district executive committee's candidate, Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, as successor to her late husband.

To counter the armed citizens, indignant over the refusal of the Long organization to call a primary election for the selection of a Democratic nominee, highway policemen were mobilized in Baton Rouge ready for action if command came down from Senator Long, who was conducting the election maneuvers under guard on the top floor of the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans.

Warnings have been sent to Senator Long and Governor O. K. Allen from leaders of the twelve parishes in the district that bloodshed might ensue. Hundreds of citizens have been sworn in as deputies to enforce court injunctions to prohibit the distribution of ballots.

Shots were exchanged last night at the Amite river bridge between 25 citizens and occupants of a truck, who they believed were bringing new ballots from Baton Rouge to replace those burned earlier in the evening in Livingston parish. Windows were shot out of the truck but no one was injured. The truck escaped down a swamp trail.

Today armed citizens planned to surround the polling places to prevent the Long-Allen election representatives from setting up voting paraphernalia and to request voters not to cast ballots.

The rear end was jacked up, a new floor was laid, using the plank with which the truck had been loaded, and then the truck was pulled out through the front of the building by means of a winch.

Former Texas Guinan Manager Is Held for Robbery of Mae West

Chicago Police Hold Two Men While Detroit Force Searches For Third Suspect—Grand Jury Indictments Out—Jewels and Money Worth $20,400 Stolen Year Ago.

Los Angeles, Dec. 5 (AP).—Charged with robbing Mae West of $20,400 in money and jewels more than a year ago, two men were under arrest today and a third was sought.

Harry O. Voiler, one time manager for the late Texas Guinan, was being held in Chicago in connection with the robbery, and Edward H. Friedman was held here. Detroit police have been asked to search for Morris Cohen. The three were indicted by the grand jury here yesterday.

Chief of Police James E. Davis said Friedman confessed the robbery and named Voiler and Cohen as his accomplices. Voiler, who had known Miss West for several years and frequently accompanied the screen star in her automobile to the studio, was named by Friedman as the "finger man" and directing leader in the robbery.

Friedman told of meeting Voiler and said the latter suggested he get another man and that they "put Mae West on the spot." For their part in the crime, Friedman said, he and Cohen were to receive $1,000 each.

Friedman said the actress was robbed in front of her apartment when Miss West, her manager, J. A. Timony, and Voiler drove up in Voiler's automobile.

Two days after the robbery, the reported confession continued, Voiler gave the two men $1,000 each and took in exchange the jewels and cash taken from the actress.

Appearing before the grand jury yesterday, Miss West said she had no indication that Voiler had any connection with the robbery until a few months ago. She said she sent Voiler by airplane to Phoenix, Ariz., in an effort to regain her jewels and that he returned stating it would be necessary to pay $5,000.

"I've known Voiler for a number of years," she said. "He has now turned out to be a snake in the grass."

Legion Plays Santa To Junior League

Future Rehearsals for Revue to Help City's Babies Will Be Held in American Legion Building.

Rehearsals were going along full swing for the Junior League Revue at the Kosloff Studio of Dancing where all plans had been made to whip this monster production into shape under the direction of John Hall of the John B. Rogers Producing Co., when the steady beat of 50 pairs of dancing feet overhead proved too much for the already tense nerves of the brokerage office on the first floor, so what to do! Only a little over two weeks to perfect 80 people in intricate songs and dances and there was no rehearsal hall available.

It was just here that the season made itself known for Santa Claus appeared with a nice, warm adequate hall for those who are trying to help Kingston's needy babies. This benevolent old saint came in the persons of Conrad J. Heiselman and Commander Finerty of the American Legion. When they heard of the position in which the Junior League found itself they stepped forward in the spirit of generous cooperation with all welfare work for which the Legion is noted and offered the hall in their building to them for the remainder of the time. A more gracious act could never be imagined, and the League feels that the successful outcome of their project and thereby the continued maintenance of their much needed Health Station will be in no small part due to the interest so practically demonstrated by the Legion.

Ulster County Farm, Home Bureau and 4-H Club Annual Meeting

Committee Named to Nominate a President of the Association for Next Year and Three Directors of the 4-H Club.

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Farm, Home Bureau and 4-H Club Associations is being held at the First Dutch Church, Kingston, today. The sessions opened at 11:30 this morning, President Millard Davis presiding.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting, held December 6, 1932, by Secretary E. W. Hathaway, the annual roll call of Farm and Home Bureau members present was held, and Secretary Hathaway announced that 67 were present, which was a better attendance than at the opening of the annual meeting last year. When Hurley was called President Davis took occasion to refer to the absence of John H. Beatty, who is seriously ill and who is greatly missed at this meeting, the first, Mr. Davis said, that he had ever missed.

Mr. Hathaway as treasurer read the financial report for the three departments of the association. The reports in full are printed elsewhere. They are complete except that they do not show federal and state aid given towards payment of salaries, but only those portions handled by the Association.

A committee composed of two members each from the three departments was then named as a nominating committee to nominate a president of the association for next year and three directors of the 4-H Club. The committee is: Frank Gaffney of Clintondale and John L. Schoonmaker of Accord representing the Farm Bureau; Mrs. George Brown of Flatbush and Mrs. Robert Groves of Kingston, the Home Bureau; Raymond Hasbrouck of New Paltz and Mrs. Hugh Ferguson of Lake Katrine, the 4-H Club.

Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. Edward Young and Mrs. Elmer Pratt were named as a committee to nominate Home Bureau directors in place of Mrs. Frank Black, Mrs. Harry Wells and Mrs. H. M. Eppes, whose terms expire. Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Eppes have served two terms and under the Home Bureau constitution are not eligible for re-election.

Fred DuBois, Kenneth Taber and Harry Wells were named as a committee to nominate Farm Bureau directors in place of George Saile, W. J. Haviland and J. T. Tucker, whose terms expire.

Charles H. Weidner, John Miller and Ganse Beach were named the committee on resolutions.

In reports on membership, Mrs. Eppes reported that the Home Bureau had a membership of 403, which is 87 more than last year's report.

C. C. DuMond stated that the Farm Bureau had 612 paid-up members and in addition they had about 100 definite promises to join, which would put the Farm Bureau just about that many ahead of the total for all of last year.

The meeting recessed at 12:30 for lunch, to resume the business session at 1:30.

Herzog Announces New Policy With Sale

Gigantic Sale Precedes New Plan of Hardware and Paint Company to do Strictly Cash Business at Minimum Prices.

Today's Freeman carries a two page announcement of the Herzog Hardware and Paint Co., Inc., 322 Wall street, of a "new policy" sale, expected by that firm to be one of the greatest buying events of its kind ever held in this city.

As is indicated by its name, the sale is the forerunner of a new policy of doing business to be put into operation in the Herzog store on January 1, 1934.

In anticipation of this change in policy the entire stock of shelf and builders' hardware, plumbing supplies of all kinds, paint, electric and other household appliances, heating appliances of all kinds, etc., have been marked down to prices that in many cases are less than the articles can be purchased for at wholesale today.

Mr. Herzog emphasizes the fact that this is not a sale of odd lots or discontinued lines of merchandise, but one in which every department of the store, with its large stock of standard merchandise, participates. Many of the articles offered, where purchases were made at the low prices previously prevailing, show mark-downs for cash disposal that make them wonderful bargains.

The sale will continue all through the holiday season, which will be good news to Christmas buyers. All sales will be for cash and this will help the public to become accustomed to the store's new policy, that of selling on a strictly cash basis.

Mr. Herzog says that he believes the public wants to get the greatest value for a dollar and that in order to give that the people who pay must not be called upon to make good for those who do not. The new policy, of selling strictly for cash, means that it will not be necessary to charge against merchandise losses from bad accounts, miscellaneous credit charges of various kinds and other handicaps of the credit system. Under the new policy the Herzog Co. expects to offer first-class merchandise at the lowest price and to meet any legitimate competition.

The action was partially tried Monday morning before Judge Loughran, a recess was taken during the afternoon while the December trial term was convened and then the Kuhlman matter was resumed. It was continued this morning, the December trial term being adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Few Celebrations Expected Here To Usher In New Temperance Era

Although at least nine places in Kingston have received permits to dispense spirituous liquors with the death of repeal late today, none of them has signified intention of having special parties to celebrate the occasion. Some of the managers of local hotels stated that they did not expect supplies of the now legal beverages until Wednesday, while others with stocks on hand expected only moderate patronage with none of the crazy celebrating, which had been predicted by dry forces.

While only nine places in Kingston had licenses so far as The Freeman could ascertain, other institutions have applied and perhaps have received licenses by the time The Freeman goes to press. Those who have received permits include The Kingston Hotel, Crown street; The Eichler Hotel, Railroad avenue; The Eagle Hotel, Main street; Ulster Hotel, Broadway and Railroad avenue; The Governor Clinton Hotel, Albany avenue; Stuyvesant Hotel, Fair and John streets; John J. Cuneo, 614 Broadway; The Sea Grill, 7 Main street, and Arthur J. Kaplan, 276 Fair street.

Queries at the local liquor control board office brought the information that no approvals had been received there.

The Golden Rule Inn, scheduled to bury "Old Man Blue Nose" at a "wake" tonight, had not received its license early this afternoon, and so the burying will be done in the legal 3.2 beer and wine, for which the inn has a permit. Special entertainment has been planned for the occasion.

How many local places had applied for licenses to dispense liquors and wines, could not be learned from the Ulster County Beverage Control Board. The board further stated that it was not prepared to even estimate the approximate number, and no list of places granted licenses has been received, it was stated.

The store operated by Mr. Kaplan in the Cordts row has been recently fitted out for the display of wet goods. Shelves have been erected and Mr. Kaplan expects to open on Wednesday. Although he has his license it is necessary for each store to specify the opening hours which will be observed, and permission is expected to come too late for an opening today.

So Kingston is expected to enter the new era of temperance and regular liquor control with little outside show.

REPEAL SHIFTS THE SCENES

Exit, Prohibition . . . As Curtain Falls On Nation's 13-Year Experiment

Prohibition ends, and Americans—taking a backward glance at the old—look forward to the new era. Their hope is that removal of the constitutional ban on liquor will promote temperance, decrease lawlessness and add new revenues. In brief, that was the argument of the repealists, as they pointed to the bootlegger, the speakeasy, the tax-grading liquor gangster and the killer—all a part of the prohibition picture.

By NOEL THORNTON

New York (AP).—Repeal! Prohibition passes. . .another era begins . . .nineteen states reclaim liquor . . .now, the cavalcade of a nation turning away from thirteen years of legal dryness.

With a kaleidoscopic flickering, the scenes pass in review—from bootleggers to moonshiners, revenue evasions to taxes, speakeasies to saloons, gin to whiskey.

Some 'Speaks' To Continue

Surprising are the number of New York speakeasies—the city supported 32,000—that plan to continue doing business without a license. . .Moonshiners announce they will be doing business in the same old mountain glen, but will put out a better grade of corn. . .Helen Morgan is the only one of the famous hostesses of the speakeasy era still reigning on Broadway.

For the first time since 1920, the bartenders' ball will be an event of the winter season. . .License fees in New York are $1,200, whether it be a battered Bowery bar or a luxurious Park avenue salon. . .That piquant flavor of Scotch is acquired by curing the malt with peat smoke.

Drink Mixers Planning

Drink mixers, with snow in the offing, are limbering their elbows to toss together one of Prof. Jerry Thomas' famous "blue blazers"—a heady concoction of whiskey, sugar, hot water and fire. . .New Orleans already has back its Ramos' gin fizz, but what of the Old Absinthe house? . . .Pharmacists claim that really good whisky must be aged in wood four years and contain 44 to 52 per cent alcohol.

The site of New York's famous Belmont bar is now a beer garden, and the bar itself has been set up in the basement of a suburban New Yorker's mansion. .The domestic production of whiskey in 1910 was 82 million gallons. . .The stock of legal whisky in 1932 was only slightly over 15 million gallons, or just enough to trickle over nine weeks.

Cocktails To Wine?

Al Capone, czar of prohibition rum runners, hailed repeal in his prison cell at Atlanta. . .Imbibing connoisseurs predict that Americans will turn from cocktails to wine. . . Westerville, Ohio, home of the anti-saloon league, is still dry. . .During prohibition, night clubs sold spurious champagne for $17 a quart—it was just apple cider charged with fizz which cost 80 cents a quart to manufacture.

Thousands of still existent speakeasies, their proprietors wondering—whither, whither, now?. . .Izzy Einstein, most colorful of dry raiders, is a bail bond agent . .The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment estimated that 200,000 gallons of hard liquor was consumed annually while the eighteenth amendment ruled.

Bars, Bars, More Bars

San Antonio's historic Buckhorn saloon, with silver dollars in the floor, became an effete curio shop. . . .The ancient Waldorf-Astoria bar, made of Santo Domingo mahogany boards, was chopped to bits and given to sentimental souvenir seekers in 1920. . .The first of Manhattan's new bars under repeal is a black glass and silver affair, illuminated by a glow of concealed lights, and cost $50,000.

The Biggest user OF FINE TURKISH TOBACCOS

—why Luckies taste better, smoother

On certain mountains in the Near East is a limited collar of earth—called in Turkish, "Yacca." Tobaccos grown there cost as high as $1.00 a pound. Carefully they are examined, leaf by leaf. Often it takes a man a whole day to select two pounds of certain of these fine tobaccos. Lucky Strike is the world's biggest user of fine Turkish tobaccos. For these tender, delicate Turkish leaves are blended with choice tobaccos from our own Southland—to make your Lucky Strike a cigarette that is fully packed—round and firm—free from loose ends. That's why Luckies taste better, smoother.

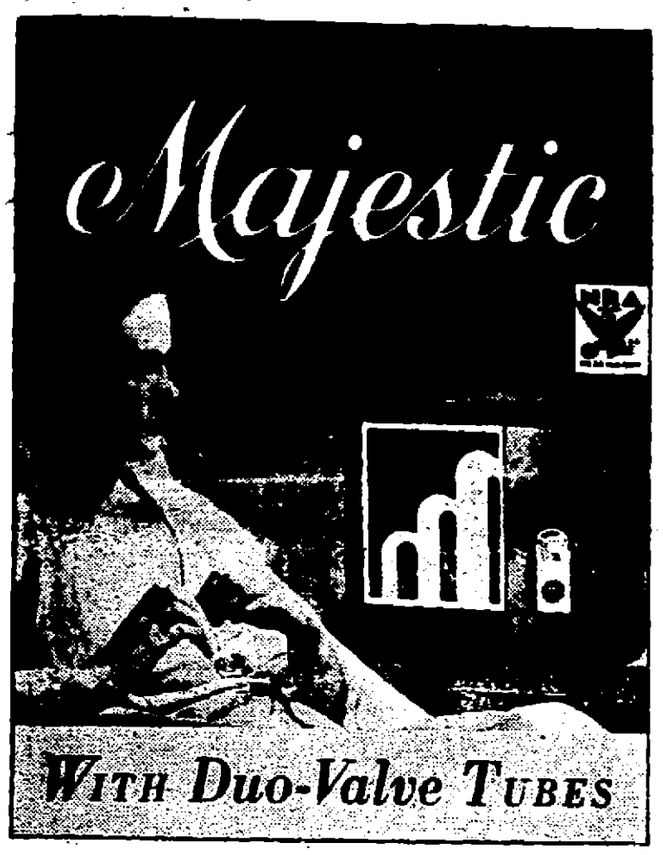

ALWAYS the finest tobaccos
ALWAYS the finest workmanship
ALWAYS Luckies please!

County Court House A Busy Place Today

Sale in Lobby, Compensation Hearing, County Court and Supreme Court Sessions and Grand Jury Among The Activities.

The county court house was a busy place today. Roger H. Loughran was conducting a sale in the lobby at 10 o'clock. People awaiting hearing in compensation court were seated in the lobby where seats had been provided. In the supervisors' rooms County Judge Frederick G. Traver was holding an adjourned session of county court. In the supervisors' committee rooms were committees at work solving county government problems. The compensation court was being held in the office of Clerk of the Board of Supervisors and in other rooms provided by Sheriff Saxe.

On the second floor of the court house Supreme Court Judge John T. Loughran was holding supreme court without a jury during the morning and the regular trial term of that court was convened at 2 o'clock with jurors present.

Even the third floor of the court house was a scene of activity. While Assistant District Attorney N. LeVan Haver was conducting the John Richert criminal case downstairs, District Attorney Cleon B. Murray was before the grand jury which was sitting in the grand jury room on the top floor of the court house.

In addition the usual business of the county treasurer, sheriff, county pistol bureau and other departments was being carried on.

PUBLIC LOTTERIES

With taxes so hard to collect and so bitterly needed, efforts are being made in several states to legalize sweepstakes on horse racing, to bring revenue into the public treasuries. Some citizens want to go still farther, and conduct public lotteries to support schools and other public institutions. One advocate says:

Many foreign countries do this sort of thing. The theory on which governments conduct sweepstakes is that it is far better for a responsible government to handle them than for private interests which cannot be controlled. Under government supervision, sweepstakes would be conducted with fairness and with every safeguard. When our government does not enter this field, citizens will invest in sweepstakes operated in foreign countries. Millions of dollars are spent on racing tickets. Why shouldn't the states get some of the revenue?

We used to be tolerant of such things, he points out. Public lotteries were once common and reputable in this country. But it will hardly do now. Public sentiment would no longer tolerate it. Citizens who question the propriety of the government conducting the liquor business would probably fight still harder against public participation in gambling enterprises. And they are right. Gambling is not a very serious vice, perhaps, but there is already too much of it for the general good. There would be still more if it had public sanction, and children would start earlier.

BASIC ENGLISH

One of the things that President Roosevelt is said to have gained from his diplomatic conferences with Maxim Litvinoff is an interest in "basic English". Mrs. Litvinoff herself, an English woman, is so enthusiastic about this language system that she has been doing propaganda work for it and getting her husband to help.

"Basic English", which originated in England, is the language boiled down to 800 simple words, nearly all short and very few of them inflected, and covering all ordinary requirements. They are easy for foreigners to learn and use. The idea behind them is that, since English is the most widely used language, and one of the simplest, it is best fitted for a world language. It would be natural for Americans to fall in with the plan. We have never been adept at learning foreign tongues; and if our own language were to spread more widely, it would be less necessary to learn them. Travel and trade everywhere would be simplified. A vocabulary of this size looks small, compared with the contents of the unabridged dictionaries, which run up into hundreds of thousands of words. Yet it is doubtful whether most of our people have a conversational range of more than 800 words.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR YOU

This is the time of the year when most of us are thinking intently—and perhaps frantically—about the problem of Christmas gifts. And here's a good suggestion: Give a present to yourself; not for entirely selfish reasons, but in order to help those to whom Christmas this year might be just one more day.

The kind of a gift that will accomplish this purpose is one that provides employment and entails the purchase of basic commodities. And nothing fills the bill more completely than property construction and betterment. Give yourself a new furnace or a roof or an electric kitchen or a garage or some new furniture. Better yet, if it's possible, give yourself a new home—you'll be getting it for next to nothing in comparison to what the best opinion forecasts it will cost in the near future, and you'll be spreading Christmas cheer among numerous families.

You local contractor or dealer in building materials is competent to advise you. He can show you where you can make real savings—how you can make your dollar do Spartan duty. Talk it over with him. Think how much a wave of construction, even if on an individually small scale, would mean to the social and economic welfare of your community. And give yourself that Christmas present. You'll never regret it.

SUNNY SEDANS

French automobile builders are doing what our usually more enterprising American builders should have done years ago. They are making sunrooms of closed cars. An ingenious sedan body at the Paris automobile show has a top which works like the cover of a roll-top desk, disappearing into the back of the car when it is not wanted. Not only can it be lowered to let in the unadulterated sunlight from above, but as it is made of paneled glass, it serves as a skylight when closed.

Thousands of Americans will probably say that this is what they have been wanting for a long time. And if they say it in the right direction, they will get it. There has always been a good deal of absurdity in taking a drive for "a little fresh air and sunshine," in a closed car that shut out most of the air and nearly all of the sunlight. The only recourse has been the open car, which is usually too windy and often too cold. A controllable top made of glass letting the ultra-violet rays through ought to go well with our sun cult.

THE FUTURE OF YOUR CHILD

It is fortunate for the coming men and women that parents now realize that youngsters with physical defects will not "grow out of them", and so these defects are corrected before it is too late.

A few months ago Hygiea, the health magazine, had the following words for parents, "If you could dip into the future as far as the eye could see and could learn that your toddler who is now a bundle of health, might be a laggard at 15 and a confirmed dullard at 25 because of some physical or mental defect, would it not arouse you into correcting that difficulty immediately?"

Because the future cannot be foreseen and because physical defects easily go unnoticed, it is the wise mother who protects her small child by having him examined at the period after he has passed babyhood, and before he starts to school.

The following questions deserve careful consideration.

Is his eyesight good?

Has he any imperfections of speech?

Is he partially deaf as one of each seven youngsters is known to be?

Is he undernourished?

Is he tired looking and lacking in physical energy?

Defects such as these are not outgrown, as so many mothers believed them to be at the outset.

The pity of it is that when some defect does develop, the child is physically and mentally unfit to stand the strain of school life. In fact, in later years it may mean the difference between success and failure."

Nowadays infant children are so well supervised that whereas a few years ago 3 in every 10 children born, died at birth or during the first year, now only 1 in about every 15 dies.

When the youngster begins school he is again under the supervision of doctors and nurses.

It is, then, the years between these two periods, 2 to 5 years of age, that parents should watch for any little physical or mental defect.

In fact, the wisest thing is to have the child examined by the family physician once or twice a year.

This removes a serious responsibility from the parent.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

by William Byron Mowery

Yesterday: Curt Tennyson and Paul St. Clair, trailing the international crook Igor Karakhan into the Canadian Northwest, have joined forces with Ralph and Sonya Nicoll, presumably entomologists on their way to study the insects of the Lilluars country, home of the extremely dangerous Klosohee Indians. Curt is much taken with Sonya, but finds she has had about doing as entomologist. He determines to question her but she gets the jump on him and asks why a man of his gifts should be a prospector as Curt has claimed to be.

Chapter 20

SONYA'S SECRET

"YOU know I'm Russian," Sonya went on. "If it were possible, I'd go back to Russia and try to play some part there, however small. When I flared out at you that evening, it was just my narrow personal feelings. But I can't go back. I'd probably be imprisoned the minute I landed. And besides I've been in Canada twelve years and feel Canadian, and a person can do something here too.

"When I say 'useful,' Curt, I don't mean professional uplifters and fussy reformers who go around prying into other people's ... or trying and trying to make everybody conform to their own standards. Heavens no! But there are roles where men can do a real good. Men with a conscience, I mean—and you've got a conscience."

Curt wished he could tell her of that evening in Edmonton when he had thrown away the Consolidated offer and taken on the Karakhan hunt. She would applaud that, where Rosalie had called him a fool and had utterly failed to understand his motive. He recalled Sonya's words, "idling around pleasantly," and he knew that that was how she would regard his plans to return north, if she knew about them.

Near five o'clock they came to a little bay, went ashore, gathered firewood and cleared a place for the two tents. It was the prettiest camp site of their trip.

They sat down under a pine to wait for the other canoes. Curt plucked nervously at the leaf of a maidenhair fern. He could stave off his talk with Sonya no longer.

"There's something I'd like to understand, Sonya. It's none of my business, except that I've got a friend's interest in you and Ralph—"

Sonya interrupted: "I know what you're going to say—that we're not entomologists. Ralph told me you asked him about that beetle. I knew you were suspicious and would find us out sometime."

She pointed at the pass. "And now you want to know why we're going into that country. You're thinking there's just some whim or rattlebrained idea behind our trip, aren't you?"

"On the contrary, I told Paul that you must have some pretty substantial motive."

"I'm glad you have that much confidence in us, after finding out how we lied." She picked a lichen curl and unrolled it in her small brown fingers. "It is a substantial reason, Curt."

"I don't question that. But I do question your secrecy about the whole thing when the trip is so dangerous. If I knew what you're trying to do, I might be able to give you a hand."

Sonya shook her head. "I don't believe you would. In fact, I know you wouldn't."

"Are you afraid I'd go barging into your plans like a bull in a china shop? I wouldn't."

She still shook her head in refusal. "I'd like to tell you. But I simply can't. It's in the very nature of my motive that I must keep it to myself."

"I can't conceive of any such circumstance."

"Then you'll have to take my word for it, Curt."

HE felt provoked at her. It was possible that she or Ralph had heard some wild tale about a rich lode or placer in the Lilluars or that she wanted to make a study of the Klosohees themselves. But he could not believe either of these guesses.

"There's something else—still less of my business, I suppose; but Sonya, why do you pretend this relationship to Ralph?"

That caught her a surprise. A color flew into her cheeks.

"Pretend—relationship—what do you mean?"

Curt was certain of his ground. He plunged boldly:

"Ralph is no more your brother than I am, girl. He's no relation to you at all."

"Why—why, how can you make an assertion like that?"

He ... "Paul overheard you once. He didn't mean to listen, but he couldn't help it."

"How much else did Paul hear?" Her tones were quick, frightened. "When was this?"

"Two evenings ago. He didn't hear anything else."

Sonya breathed easier. Curt realized, too late, that he had made a mistake. There was something else, and she was afraid for him to know it. If he had pretended he knew, he could probably have got it out of her.

She admitted reluctantly: "Yes, you're right; we're not related. I'll tell you why we made this—this arrangement. If I'd been alone, I couldn't have come in here at all. I wouldn't even have got as far as Russian Lake. Ralph's a good friend. I knew I could trust Ralph implicitly. He's a gentleman through and through. Under the circumstances our arrangement was entirely sensible. It was the only recourse I had."

But all that told him nothing about her mission in that country. Curt swung the talk back:

"Sonya, I'm not playing cards with you, or trying to meddle in your business, or looking for any advantage to myself. You may be justified in going on north. In that case I'll give you all the help in my power. But I've got to know what you're doing." He paused a moment, then added point-blank, "And you've got to tell me."

Sonya refused flatly. "I'm sorry, Curt. I can't do it."

There was no use to argue. He was irritated by her stubborn silence and jealous that Ralph should share her confidence while he was barred out.

"I suppose you're going to wash your hands of us now," she said.

"You intend to go on above the pass?" he demanded. And when she nodded: "You're fumbling dynamite, if you only knew it."

"I do know it. But there's a chance that we can get on friendly terms with the Klosohees."

"A mighty slim chance, from what old John tells me. You can't go on without Paul and me."

"We will."

She said it quietly, but Curt knew she meant it. Her purposiveness was almost grim. Short of tying her up hand and foot and taking her back to Russian Lake he could not stop her.

"If we can make friends with the Klosohees," she said presently, "there wouldn't be any danger at all. That's the crux of the whole matter. You've had a good deal of experience with Indians, Curt: I believe you could manage it." She leaned towards him, a plea crept into her voice. "I know I don't deserve help, after refusing to take you into my confidence; but won't you, anyway, Curt?"

AS he saw the situation, he was forced to take his choice of helping her or letting her go into that country without protection. By themselves she and Ralph simply did not stand a chance. That great blue cleft up river would prove a one-way portal into Klosohee territory.

Perhaps he could work himself into the good graces of the Klosohees. If so, the whole danger would blow over, as she had said. At any rate Paul and he would be guarding her.

They could go cautiously, keep their eyes open and bring her back to safety if trouble started popping.

He did not like the prospect. She would be exposed to danger, however careful he and Paul might be, and he would be sadly handicapped on the Karakhan hunt. But the alternative was to let her go through that pass unprotected, defenseless; and that was something he could not do.

Sonya was watching him, hanging upon his decision. Curt saw her fingers trembling as she waited. He thought it fine of her that in those moments she made not the slightest attempt to sway him by her charms or her powers as a girl.

"I'll make a bargain with you, Sonya," he said finally. "It's this: I'll take you in there and do everything I can with those Klosohees, but if I see that a friendly contact isn't possible you're to let Paul and me bring you back out, and you'll go on south to Russian Lake. Will you agree to that?"

Sonya clasped his hand. "Curt, that's awfully splendid of you!"

"You promise, then? You'll turn back when I give the word, and you promise you'll go straight south to Russian Lake?"

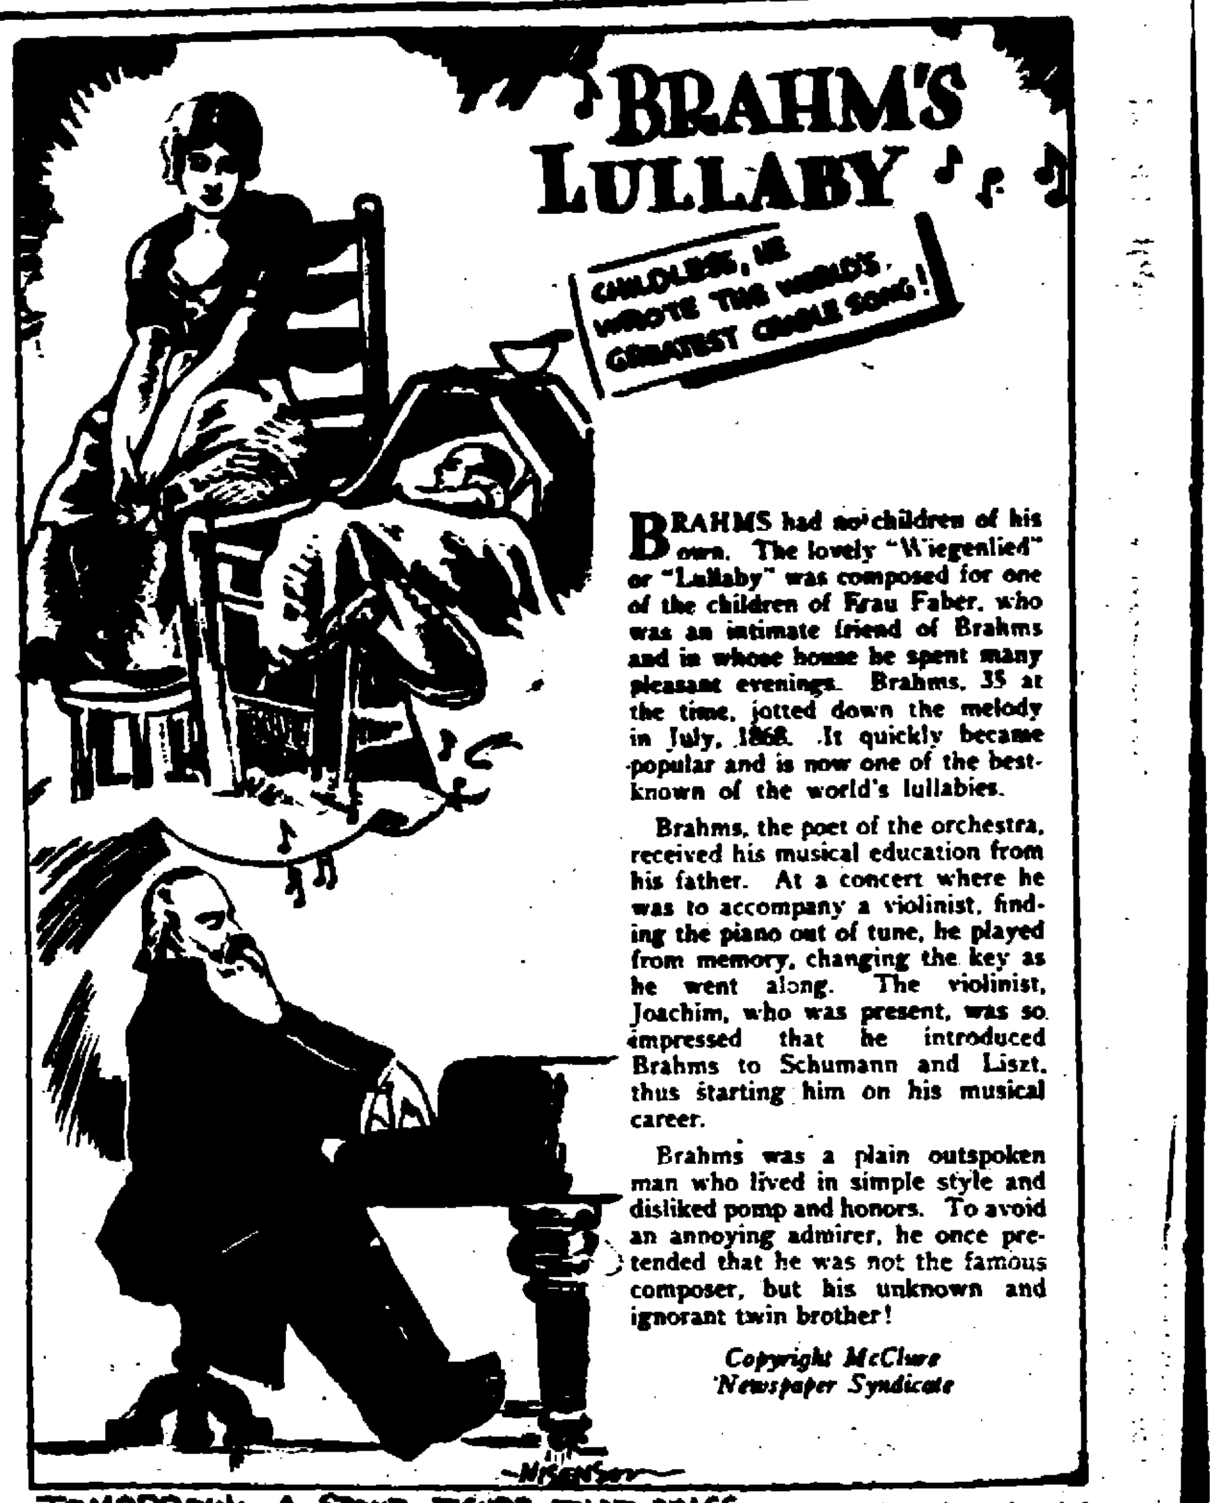

"Yes, I promise."

Milton raised $147 for the American Red Cross in 1932 and it is hoped that the local fund will come close to that figure this season. Six complete reports have been made to Mrs. Elsie Hallock, local chairman, by members of a hard working committee. There are five yet to be heard from. At the present time a total of $84 has been received in all parts of the village of Milton. The amount raised this year should nearly reach that of 1932. The local chairman is more than pleased with the way in which the committeemen have proceeded and with the response of the Milton people. A silver offering was taken at the union Thanksgiving service in the Presbyterian Church which amounted to $8.50 and was contributed to the Red Cross fund.

The December meeting of the Milton W. C. T. U. will be held on Thursday afternoon, December 7, at the home of Mrs. William Lais. Mrs. Lais and Miss Mary Taber will be the hostesses. The topic for the afternoon will be "Peace", and will be led by Mrs. F. C. Wood, peace superintendent. Each member is requested to bring with her a gift suitable for a child. "Go-to-Church Sunday" was observed by the Milton Grange Sunday afternoon with a special service at the Friends Church in Milton. The National Grange names a day each year when a service of this kind is held and which the entire membership of local Granges attend. The Rev. Russell Branson of Clintondale gave a very interesting address. There was special music including a solo by Mrs. Irving Clarke.

Each member of the community will receive in the near future a letter from the Salvation Army asking for a Christmas gift of money which will be used at Christmas time in the Hudson River division. It is thought with cash received greater work and more appropriate distributions of gifts can be made to the benefit of the most people. The need is greater than ever before and a small contribution will be gladly received as well as larger ones. All village contributions will be made to Mrs. Charles R. Taber of Milton, who is the local treasurer, and who in turn will send it to division headquarters.

The Girl Scouts of Milton are to have a card party on Friday evening, December 8. They are working hard in preparation for the benefit party and plan that all who attend shall have a good time. Time to Produce a Book

It has been calculated that the whole time taken in the production of an ordinary book of about 100,000 words, from the casting off and the composition to the machinery and binding, and from the first dispatch of the copy to the printers, to the return of the completed book, is about 12 weeks in all. Even then, the business of actual publication has not been counted in the estimate.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — One statement in the letter of resignation of Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, economic adviser to the treasury, interested Washington observers as much as did all the actual departure from the administration fold.

"... It is possible that there might still be a meeting of minds," he wrote, "had I been afforded any opportunity to discuss policies with you, but no opportunities whatever have been afforded me since my return from London in July. ..."

The resignation of Dr. Sprague surprised no one particularly in the capital. Everyone knew he was not in sympathy with the President's present monetary program.

Sprague's statement, however, that he wasn't given an opportunity to talk things over with the President raises an interesting question of Roosevelt policy. Does he mean to imply that after a certain point the President refuses to discuss his policies with those who disagree with him?

Just Another Ride

THOSE who talked with Commander Settle in Washington after his flight into the stratosphere were struck with the nonchalance with which he described his experiences 11 miles above the earth.

To Settle, apparently, it was just another balloon ride perhaps no more thrilling than some of the others he has taken.

One is reminded of the time Settle appeared before the naval court of inquiry here investigating the Akron disaster. He described to that court what happened on a previous balloon ascent he had made. Everyone from the admiral on down listened breathlessly.

It happened in 1928 at Pittsburgh, during the balloon race elimination trials.

"I was caught in a cold air mass," said Settle, "fringed with roaring line squalls. My balloon took three terrific lunges skyward, then three as terrible descents before I managed to land. The speed of the up and down motions was so great my recording instruments couldn't register them."

Graduation Time

THE Washington diplomatic corps, sometimes called the "training school for future presidents of Latin-American countries" may graduate another star pupil next month.

Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ecuadorean minister to Washington, has been nominated for the presidency of his country and has departed to open his campaign. The election is to be held December 14 and 15.

Other Latin-American ministers to Washington who have returned to become chief executives of their countries recently are Minister Olaya of Columbia, Minister Alfaro of Panama and Minister Sacasa of Nicaragua.

COMING EVENTS ON THE RADIO

Thursday evening radio listeners will hear a broadcast from the first radio bar in history. The bar will be located in the studios of WOR, and will play a highly audible part in the broadcast of "Maverick Jim," a new western series beginning December 7 and continuing on Thursday and Friday evenings. The bar is a result of a number of unsuccessful experiments on sound effects. Both Stewart Sterling, the author, and Jay Hanna, the radio director, are sticklers for accuracy. When the new radio series called for a scene in the Bucket of Blood Saloon, Sterling and Hanna began to work out sound effects appropriate for such a setting. First they tapped glasses together, slid them along a board and mixed liquids together, but the results were unconvincing when picked up by a microphone. It was necessary to do something different, and as there is nothing that sounds as much like a bar as a bar itself, a real sure-enough, honest-to-goodness bar will be in action during the program.

3 about Cigarettes
Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand
Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.
BY the use of long steel ovens —drying machines of the most modern type—and by ageing the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.
Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.
And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture.
Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane —the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.
In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says:
"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."

The hardest time for a man to get up in the world is every morning.

Reasons!!
Hundreds each morning I behold

More are reduced to walking.

The more we deal with men in the various affairs of life, the more we learn to appreciate dependability. How different life would be if men could always be trusted to do what they say they will do.

Farmer Smathers—Are you still bothered with those relatives from the city who came every Sunday to eat a big dinner and then never invited you to return?

Farmer Jeffreys—No, they finally took the hint.

Farmer Smathers—What did you say to them?

Farmer Jeffreys—Nothing. We just served sponge cake every time they came and they finally got wise.

Little boys who use bad language when they are playing marbles usually grow up to be golf players.

Mrs. Newed—Matilda, our new cook, says she puts her very heart into her cooking.

Mr. Newed—Then she must have been very heavy hearted when she made this cake.

Judge—Mrs. Murphy, why did you insult the gas man?

Mrs. Murphy—Sure, yer Honor, he called me an occupant.

A local young woman who is taking her first lessons in horseback riding is mostly dissatisfied with the type of saddles used. "I don't know why they make the saddles so hard," she complains, "when it would be just as easy to make them soft."

Woman—I had my voice tried.
Neighbor—What was the verdict?
Woman—Fine.
Neighbor—Were you able to pay it?

People are learning that they are poor and adjusting themselves to their circumstances. Nothing will do more to restore a much more happy economic condition. The country is never going to get rich by swaggering around and pretending to vast wealth, that it doesn't have.

Waiter—That is Filet of Sole, sir.
Diner—Well, take it back to the kitchen and see if you can't find me a nice piece of upper with the buttons on.

There ought not be so much objection to one-piece bathing suits. Certainly a girl's got to wear something.

The Malefactor of Great Wealth—The directors meeting of the P. D. & Q. Railroad was so deadly dull that I stole quietly away.

His Wife—Good! I suppose you mean their right of way.

Ambition ends with many men as soon as they have accumulated sufficient wealth to have their breakfasts in bed.

Teacher (reading)—The horse and the cow is in the field. Mary what's wrong with that sentence?

Mary (more versed in the rules of politeness than in the rules of grammar)—The lady should be mentioned first.

Man wants but little here below and even that these days is more than he is going to get out of it.

Now for a while a lot of earnest correspondents will be writing to Santa Claus instead of Roosevelt.

Certainly "rugged individualism" hasn't been very pert lately. At the same time, you can't say rugged Communism, Fascism or Nazism is so hot.

Statesmanship is really more like baseball than football: The winning statesman has to be a pitcher with an up curve.

Camp Men Enjoyed Rich Feast and Fun Thanksgiving Day

Shokan, Dec. 4.—The completion, during the past week, of an assembly hall, an office building for the forestry staff and a storehouse for automobile supplies, serves to give Camp No. 2 a much more imposing appearance as viewed from the state road at Boiceville. The assembly hall, of the same construction as the other main units, henceforth will be used as a social and recreation center and also for the lectures and classes in educational advancement. There will be a piano, piano-player, radio, facilities for playing games and possibly a stage for entertainment purposes. Lieut. Sydney Freilich, camp recreational and athletic officer, hopes to inaugurate a series of amateur nights during the winter season. Construction was begun Saturday on an eight-car garage building and work shop at the east end of the camp. The latrine, with modern plumbing, was completed the latter part of the week. Additional use for the flooring of the old tents has been found as sidewalks throughout the grounds.

The kitchen, located in the west end of the mess hall and now in use, is replete with culinary conveniences. Illustrative of the efficiency in planning the facilities in this department are the hot and cold water faucets, two in number, which extend out over the ranges and at a height calculated to be out of the way of pots and pans. By simply sliding a container over the surface of the three connected ranges it may be filled with water without lifting. There are racks and cupboards for kitchen utensils and also enclosed shelves for the canned goods which are now stored in the kitchen to prevent their freezing. Kitchen equipment concerns and scouring powder manufacturers would do well to get a picture of Co. 215's chow dispensary for reproducing in their magazine and newspaper advertisements. Housekeepers also might pick up a few nifty ideas for home use by taking a peek inside Uncle sam's local kitchen. It's a honey.

That Thanksgiving Dinner

Thanksgiving Day at the camp was a gala occasion and one long to be remembered by the woodsmen, foresters, soldiers and their invited guests who were present. At the dinner, which took place at noon, the blessing was asked by the Rev. A. J. Coffey of Phoenicia, who with Mrs. Coffey and Supervisor and Mrs. Clarence Voss were numbered among the Town of Shandaken residents attending the feast. Lieut. Otto Wienecke, commanding officer of camp No. 2, gave an interesting talk on "The Spirit of Thanksgiving." The menu as planned by Lieut. Nathan Armour, mess officer, and Corp. Martin Kunert, mess sergeant, was as follows: Oyster cocktail, roast turkey with chestnut-raisin dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, candied sweet potatoes, baked squash, spring salad, hearts of celery, green stuffed olives, beer, hot chocolate, mince pie, assorted candies, oranges and apples, ice cream dixies, cigars, cigarettes and mixed nuts. Possibly the men who remained in camp for the holiday enjoyed a more substantial and varied "feed" than was had by many of those who took furloughs; at any rate the stay-at-homes were pleased with the dinner and social hour. An artistically designed brochure containing the menu together with a complete roster of the army, forestry and C. C. C. personnel of Camp No. 2 was distributed to every one as an interesting souvenir of this happy occasion.

Men Leave Camp

Two members of the regular army detail at Boiceville were released from service at the camp last Thursday. They were Corporal Gulick Bolt, supply sergeant, and Private Theadore Ray, chief cook, both of whom have been valued members of the staff. The men returned to their old outfit, the 62nd Coast Artillery, at Fort Totten, New York Harbor. Cook Ray unfortunately met with an accident a short time before leaving for New York. He was opening a bottle of horseradish when something slipped and he received a severe gash in his wrist. It is not expected that other non-coms will be sent here to replace Corporal Bolt and Private Ray. Sergt. John B. Gilborn and Corp. Martin Kunert will probably remain at the camp. The recent transfer leaves the kitchen staff made up entirely of C. C. C. men, the present detail being as follows: First cooks, Frank Mikitsch and John Vallon; scond cooks, Arthur Hawthorne, Thorliet Gunderson and Leland Cascles; student cook, Verne Carney; steward, H. Cross; dining room orderlies, James Tiano and Donald Becker.

Athletic Notes.

The basketball team having taken into camp the Hebrew-American A. C. five last week by the score of 36-19, are now preparing to tackle the Kingston Royals at the Chichester Hall next Friday evening. The game will be followed by dancing. Lieutenant Freilich plans to make these Friday night basketball and social occasions of weeky occurrence throughout the season. Three of the camp's basketballers are Ulster county lads, Glenn of Clintondale, Cassles of Marlborough and Traphagen of Ellenville. The lieutenant also has his boxing squad going strong, and in connection with this sport he has received a communication from Major Whitney, commander of the Second C. C. C. district, in which the presence of the local boys is desired in an inter-district elimination series to be held at Delmar, near Albany, on December 15. Those of the 215th Company who are qualified to represent Camp No. 2 in the bouts, together with their weights, are as follows: Rocco Pia, 125; Leonard Raener, 122; Edward Maroney, 118; Clement Smith, 180; Joseph Argo, 235; and James McGeogh, 145. Training for the Delmar event already has been started.... Incidentally, it might be noted that the members of the athletic squads derive no small amount of physical training from their daily duties in the forests; certainly their tramps on the Shandaken mountainsides tend to exert a beneficial effect upon the woodmen's legs and wind, while plenty of pure, fresh air and nourishing food serves to keep them in the pink of condition.

Religious Services.

The Rev. A. J. Coffey, pastor of the Phoenicia Baptist Church, has consented to hold religious services in the new assembly hall each Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. It is expected that services for Jewish and non-sectarian members of the camp will be conducted at stated intervals by Chaplain Barasch, of the Second C. C. C. district. Company 215 now has a total strength of 180 men, of whom 78 are from Ulster county. The average number engaged in field work last week was 134, or about the same as during the previous weeks. In addition to gypsy moth work, there is trail-making in progress at Belle Ayr Mountain and also in southwestern Shandaken, where crews are engaged in making a path from Woodland to the crests of Wittenberg, Cornell and Slide Mountains, and thence approximately to Hemlock Mountain at the headwaters of the west branch of the Neversink. These trails not only will be a great boon to mountain climbers but will also constitute an invaluable aid in the expeditious fighting of forest fires high up on the slopes of these great peaks of the southern Catskills. At the present time there remains considerable snow on the mountains, making the task of constructing trails not an easy one.... The camp on Saturday was expecting a visit from Major James Blackwell, C. C. C. district surgeon, whose duty it is to conduct medical and sanitary inspections at the various units. The major, an army officer attached to the Albany Medical College, is also a professor of military science.... By way of further insuring the comfort of the woodsmen on their field trips, the big transport trucks have been recently fitted up with canvas coverings attached to iron piping. This improvement will serve to keep the snow and rain and cold winds from the boys on their daily trips up and down the Esopus valley.

General Corps News.

First Corps Area officials have made purchase of 1,500 pairs of snow shoes for the C. C. C. outfits of New England, according to "Happy Days," the national newspaper. The man in the business for himself at a small village along the Kennebec, was given the contract to make 56 pairs of the shoes, a job which he said would provide a little much-needed money for his neighbors as well. Thus it is that in several hundreds of sections of the country, as in Ulster county, the camps are making it possible for local residents to get hold of a little extra work.... There are two camps, Funeral Range and Cow Creek, located in the famous Death Valley, probably the richest of any valley in the country in historic lore. Here are the arsenic springs and salt sinks that took such heavy tolls of life among the "Forty-niners;" where the Jayhawkers started across the valley to the north for the goldfields of the American River, California, and where Johnny Mills drove his 20-mule teams for the Pacific Coast Borax Company. Roads and trails are the C. C. C. jobs there, and trimotored planes bringing officers on tours of inspection have replaced the creaking ox-carts of pioneer days.

To Plant 50 Million Trees.

Forty to fifty million young trees will be planted on gullied and washed lands next spring as a part of the plan to stop the erosion of rich top soil on farms in the Central and Southern states. Black locust is the preferred tree for this work in most localities, though willow, sycamore, cottonwood, pine and red cedar also will be used where conditions are favorable to their growth. The forest service has 23 million black locust seedlings available for planting purposes and the conservation camps are expected to take practically all of them. The black locust makes a large seedling in one year. The locust, as is well known, makes a durable fence post, being classed with chestnut and cedar in this respect.... Trail making in the Grand Teton national park of Wyoming includes the Cascade and Death Canyon loops among the spectacular peaks.

Harriet Beecher Stowe

Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was brought up in an atmosphere which tended to develop the attitude of mind revealed in the pages of this remarkable book. She was the sixth child of Rev. Lyman Beecher, a New England preacher and abolitionist who was wont to appeal to heaven to help "poor, oppressed, bleeding Africa, that the time of deliverance might come."

Old St. Petersburg

The great Russian port on the Baltic was named St. Petersburg until 1914, when the name was Russianized to Petrograd. When the Bolsheviks came into power they changed it to Leningrad, in honor of the genius of communism.

First annual meeting of the South Rondout fire district will be held on Tuesday evening, December 5, for election of fire commissioners and the treasurer. A large attendance is requested. Polls will be open from 7 to 10 p. m.

At the foot of the range is the cabin of Owen Wister, author of "The Virginian," for whom Mr. Wister, one of the group, is named.... Romance and overalls go hand in hand more often than is probably known, as witness the case of a peavy stationed at Ostrich Bay on Puget Sound. It appears that during the war a factory girl in Freeland, Pa., placed the following note in a pair of overalls destined for overseas use: "I hope these overalls wear good and I hope you are the man who will get the Kaiser. Expect an early reply." Unfortunately, the clothing lay in a packing case until another war against unemployment and depression had begun. The woodsman, however, has written to the damsel, so the story may yet have a happy ending.

M. J. Fox, a lumberman-forester connected with the Michigan Conservation Commission, came to Michigan when the state was a forest from shore to shore. "Trees are like people," Fox says. "There are different nationalities in trees—different habits. Some are hard and some are soft. Some are straight and some are crooked. Some are young—when they get old they die. The forest often makes me think of the human family—they die when they crowd too much. The lordly hemlock tree just can't stand our civilization. The oak and pine tree are exalting to humans." . . . Those who have been accustomed to consider the Indian as a lazy mortal, who allows his squaw to have all the pleasure of working whilst he hunts and fishes, must needs change their viewpoint as a result of what the 14,400 Indians in Uncle Sam's conservation camps have done under the forestry plan. Four hundred and sixty-seven miles of telephone lines, 629 miles of horse and truck trails, and 4,480 man-days of nursery work are listed among work projects completed by 52 of the Indian camps. The red men also have had a stiff course of instruction in building fences and bridges, erecting camps and fighting forest fires. . . . Co. 255, now stationed at Dry Prong, La., for the winter, is not afraid of the "Big, bad wolf." In fact, they heard the wolf at the door and promptly took him inside. Wolf is now camp mascot. He stands two feet high, is jet black, walks around the camp and eats out of the woodmen's hands like a pet dog.

Another 4-H Club Boy Tells His Story

Bernard McCabe, Wallkill, has been an active 4-H Club member for four years. Besides doing fine work each year, he has credit for serving successfully as secretary of his club for one year, president for three years, and local leader for one year.

This is his own history of his 4-H activities and rewards:

First Year—1929-30

"When our club was first organized in 1929, I was among the first to join. When the election of the officers began, I was elected secretary and later advanced to the presidency. My work was gardening.

"Although this was my first year, I was very successful at the fair for I received six first prizes, four seconds, and one fourth on my vegetables. I sent exhibits to the State Fair but received no prizes.

"At achievement day I was one of the three of our club who received an achievement pin.

Second Year—1930-31

"When we reorganized this year with our 15 members, I was elected president of our club. In the community group meetings organized this year, I was elected vice-president and I gave a demonstration on seed germination before this group. Again I raised a garden.

"In June, 1930, I was among the few from our club who attended the county 4-H camp.

"This year two new projects were offered to the 4-H members, forestry and pheasant raising. I took both of these projects and achieved very good success in both.

"In June of this year I received a trip to the State 4-H Congress at Ithaca. I found the trip most interesting and the instruction periods of great value both to me and to the club in my later club teachings. It was because of this trip and the campus of Cornell, that I made up my mind to attend this college after completing high school.

"In the fair this year I won two first prizes, one second, one third, and one fourth, three fifths, two sevenths, and three tenths on vegetables. This year for the first time I was visited by the bean beetle and squash beetle.

"At achievement day I made an exhibit of vegetables and handwork and spoke on the benefits of my trip to Ithaca.

Third Year—1931-32.

"This year when our club reorganized with its 18 members, I was again elected president. When our Farm Shop was organized since we hadn't any officers this year, we judged the members by their work. I had a 92 per cent average.

"This year I was successful at the fair, for I won four first prizes, four seconds, two thirds, our fourth, and three honorable mention.

"My biggest prize, however, was being selected as a delegate to the state fair at Syracuse. The trip was very instructive, since I profited by the social contact and I saw the new types of machinery and the modern methods of farming, besides the many other exhibits. When I came home I found the trip of great assistance in teaching the members.

"At achievement day I spoke of the trip and its benefits and urged the members to work hard so that they might some day have this honor.

Fourth Year—1932-33.

"In 1932 when we reorganized our club, I was again elected president of our club and again took garden work.

"This year when we reorganized our Agricultural Engineering Club, I was elected local leader. During the club year we had food sale, and with the proceeds we bought tools for the club members' use. At the completion of the year, our club was very near the 100 per cent average.

"In March, 1933, I received my beekeeping course and have since made good progress in beekeeping.

"In April of this year a Red Cross course, consisting of three hours nightly for 10 consecutive nights, was offered to the 4-H leaders. I took this course and beginning in September I am going to teach this branch of work to our members since I believe it is very necessary to Woodworking Club members.

"At the fair this year with the cooperation of two other members, we operated two booths concerning garden insects and tool grinding. In the garden insect booth, I had a number of frames containing butterflies, moths and insects. This is the result of two years of collecting.

"I have now finished my club life for the fourth year and I find that I owe a good part of my success to the competent leadership of Mr. Joy, County 4-H Club agent, to the cooperation of our Wallkill High School principal, Mr. Crane, and to the members of our club. Because of our excellent club work in our community the people of Wallkill have built a cabin for the Scouts and the 4-H clubs. And with the coming year I hope I may still 'make the best better'."

Although Bernard had made up his mind to attend Cornell University, this plan was changed and he is now enrolled in Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy.

Bernard was chosen the outstanding 4-H Club member of Ulster county at the close of the 1932 club year. He entered the National 4-H Leadership Contest. Bernard was selected as Ulster county's representative to National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, December 4-9. However, he has decided not to take the trip because he would miss a good deal of college work. The alternates chosen in the county representative contest were Franklin Kelder, Accord, and Anna DuBois, New Paltz. Anna DuBois will make the trip.

News from the World on Wheels

A Ford V-8 truck motored with a two-ton pay load has beaten the time of the fastest train from coast to coast. The remarkable run in the face of winter weather conditions was made from the beach front at Atlantic City to the city line of Los Angeles in 71 hours, 12 minutes, 30 seconds, a shave less than three days.

The heat-treated steel flywheel on Terraplane motors is driven with 50 per cent less power from the motor than would be required by the conventional heavy cast-iron wheel generally found on automobile engines. This is one of the reasons for the high power-to-weight ratio, and consequent efficiency, of Terraplane motors.

Chevrolet is now in production on new 1934 models as the beginning of next year's program the Chevrolet Motor Company announced today. Employment is nearly normal in the forge plant in Detroit, the foundry in Saginaw and the carburetor and die casting plant in Bay City. The other manufacturing plants located in Flint, Detroit and Toledo have already half their regular employes back at work and the production at the various assembly plants is starting slowly.

National sales of the Pontiac straight eight during the first 20 days of November were considerably more than double the sales recorded in the same period of 1932.

At the directors' meeting of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, held in Detroit on Wednesday, November 29, important changes were made in both management and directorate. Upon the resignation of DuBois Young as president and general manager, Charles D. Hastings was elected president. He takes office immediately, and in addition will act as general manager, as well as chairman of the board of directors.

Ford V-8 Truck

BREAKS RECORDS FROM COAST-TO-COAST

BEATS FASTEST TRAIN TIME from Atlantic City to Los Angeles

HERE'S proof of the speed, reliability and economy of the Ford V-8 Truck. Not vague claims or sales ballyhoo, but a definite record of performance. A record that counts double because it was made in the face of ice and snow and the hazards of winter. Here are the exact facts and figures —

Left Atlantic City (N.J.) 12:01 A. M., Monday, November 20. Arrived Los Angeles (Cal.) at 11:13 P. M., Wednesday, Nov. 22.

Think of it! Across the country in a little under three days in a Ford V-8 Truck. Over hills and mountains — across prairies — through desert sands at an average speed of 41 3-10 miles an hour.

Ford

Faster time from Atlantic City to Los Angeles, by many hours, than is made by the fastest trains!

This was a Standard 1½-ton Ford V-8 Panel Truck, with 131½-inch wheelbase. It carried a full load and four passengers. Three were drivers who alternated day and night at the wheel. The fourth was the official observer of the Keystone Automobile Club who certified the run.

Weeks of the toughest kind of driving were crowded into a few days — it was a test that few trucks could stand or dare to make—but the Ford V-8 Truck came through with one of the greatest performance records of all time.

2945 MILES IN 72 HOURS

NOT A PENNY FOR REPAIRS

OIL CONSUMPTION 5 QUARTS IN 2945 MILES

Before this run was started, the engine in this Ford V-8 Truck made an endurance record of 700 miles in 24 hours' continuous driving LOCKED IN SECOND GEAR. It used no lubricants, no water, and only one quart of oil.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects. Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 16 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath. Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Advt.

Bagging Holiday Gifts

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

The two models illustrated typify the more formal feeling which is so important this season in bags to be carried for afternoon. Above is a hand-puffed antelope-suede in black, mounted with metal.

Below, is a bag of black velvet, with metal slide fastener, with the top box-pleated, and laced through with satin ribbon. The ring is of crystal.

The third bag gives evidence of designing a tailored model which is dressy enough for afternoon wear by reason of its silver metal and strass ornament. This is arched and high. The bag is of black antelope-suede.

Taffeta Rustles Over the Land

Fashion observers, sauntering out recently and late of nights, have been surprised to find that not one or two but more taffeta evening gowns are being worn by those who frequent the smartest evening rendezvous in after-theater hours.

Chic dressmakers are making black taffeta frocks for the matron and white taffeta for the debutante. The taffetas worn are usually in black with linings or facings which reveal just a hint of bright color with the motion of the frock.

The Suit Vogue Makes Blouses Good Gifts

New York—We who used to laugh at chest protectors wear them under a more alluring name. Fur bibs and fur vestees are seen wherever there are women who have harkened to fashion's call.

The costume shown was sketched in Paris, and shows the jerkin idea already referred to. If one adds an undersection of fur, or a bib or gilet, the suit accommodates itself to rapid changes of temperature, which is certainly point one in its favor. Point two is the fact that blouses may be changed to suit the occasion. Lame blouses are very chic any time any where.

A suit does not necessarily presage a blouse and skirt year, but it happens to work out that way in 1933. The separate skirt is very much in demand. So is the blouse. For a number of years, a wardrobe was apt to contain only such skirts as were part of a suit. This is no longer so. One has suit skirts and separate skirts.

A good deal of publicity has been goven the return of the "Gibson Girl" type of dress, and this as surely even the real young things now know, was the shirtwaist and skirt. It was, during the "Gibson Girl" era, not attempted for balls and parties. With the enthusiasm we are showing for the clothes of that period, we have accepted the shirtwaist and skirt idea for formal occasions, balls, parties and all that. It is an amusing fashion, and done very elegantly in velvet and lame or something of like magnificence. We have already talked of and shown the sweaters for evening, and that is even more extreme than the shirtwaist.

The girl who looks her best in a suit should take advantage of the current preference for them, as it is not usual to find suits in such high favor in the winter season. It also makes any sort of blouse an ideal Christmas gift.

VERY FRENCH AND FURY

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

The suit ensemble with fur gilet is well sponsored in Paris this winter. It is developed here in fancy woolen in beige, with gilet of black Hudson seal. The belt is of lacquered black serpent skin; buckle and buttons are of white metal.

ZENA PASTOR ANNOUNCES MARRIAGE TO JERSEY GIRRL

Zena, Dec. 5.—On Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, over 50 people gathered at the Reformed Church for a Thanksgiving service, at which the Rev. John Heidenreich delivered an excellent sermon and the little ladies' chorus sang as they never sang before.

Immediately after the close of the service, which was most impressive, Mr. Heidenreich stated that he wished to make an announcement, and then proceeded to tell the congregation that Miss Bernice Tomer and he had been married the day before at the home of her parents at Highland Park, N. J. Thereupon followed a reception and everyone stepped up to the platform and congratulated the groom and offered all possible happiness to the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Heidenreich were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carnright for Thanksgiving dinner.

In the evening just as the young couple were leaving the supper table and preparing to go to Kingston with Mr. and Mrs. Carnright, a large gathering of Zena and Woodstock folks stormed the house and a real old fashioned skimmington was under way. Every possible noise contraption was in loud evidence and it was quite a long time before the bridal couple showed themselves. Congratulations were in order again and all were invited in. The uninvited guests put another surprise over by bringing along refreshments, which were served later after a couple of hours visiting and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Heidenreich had planned and invited the whole community to a reception and party at the church social hall for Friday evening, so there was nothing to do but gather again and help them celebrate some more. Over 60 neighbors and friends responded to the invitation and the evening was a most enjoyable one. There were games and music and Mr. and Mrs. Heidenreich then served coffee, sandwiches, cake and ice cream. The young folks of the Christian Endeavor assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Heidenreich left Zena early Saturday morning to continue their honeymoon. Destination is unknown. They will be back this week-end and services will be held as usual in the forenoon.

Be Elegant, Is Fashion's Message

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NOTHING in the way of sumptuous fabrics, fine laces, precious furs, glittering embroideries and gleaming jewels is too luxurious to satisfy fashion's ambition this season.

The bringing back of the formal afternoon velvet suit is perhaps one of the most significant events in this mode of elegance.

As every style-conscious woman knows when the velvet daytime suit de luxe is in fashion there is a lot that must be lived up to in the way of endless accessory elegancies. In proof of which we refer you to the charming little outfit which costumes the young modern seated in the group pictured.

The velvet which fashions this modish two-piece is a super-quality lyons type. The fur is black skunk which was considered a most popular trimming in early Victorian days. The frill of fine lace down the front and peeping from beneath the fur-cuffed sleeves matches the lace of the blouse. Of course you have noticed how like a quaint basque of yore are the lines of the pert little snug-fitting jacket. The wee chapeau is in perfect keeping with the theme.

Another trend in velvet daytime fashions which should be mentioned because of its importance this season is that of the fur-bordered tunic suit. The opportunities for fur and velvet opulency offered is beyond wildest flights of imagination. Then there is the strictly tailored short jacketed velvet suit which looks smartest when topped with a beret of its very own velvet.

Lelong, who always dresses the young fille so beautifully presents the model posed to the left in the group. It is done in black net and lyons velvet. The corded velvet finishing on the net flouncing is repeated on the shoulder. The fact that this young woman is wearing a handsome glittering necklace and bracelet should be taken into account for fashion regards rich jewelry ensembles such as this as a necessary luxury and proper finesse to every formal costume.

If conclusive evidence be needed that this is a season in which fashion creators have become luxury-conscious to a marked degree, here you have it in the regal evening gown posed in the foreground of our illustration. American beauty velvet richly embroidered with gold and jeweled stones fashions this exquisite mode. The tunic line continues gracefully into a fish-tail train lined with pink satin.

While the average woman may not be aspiring to the super formality which this gorgeous gown bespeaks yet it may be accepted as interpretative as to certain style trends which may be tuned to occasions more or less formal. For instance the American beauty tone of the velvet employed verifies word from Paris that deep warm colorings in purple and reddish key such as the very new blackberry and aubergine and various wine shades are in the ascendency. Also the prestige of velvet as medium-supreme for dinner and evening gowns is here re-affirmed. Then, too, the tunic theme introduced reflects the latest silhouette movement. Finally the elaborate jewel and gold embroidery is indicative of the mood which fashion is in to trim velvet with beguiling touches of beadwork and kindred effects.

CAPES BACK AGAIN IN LATEST STYLES

Capes are back again.

Little waist length capes appear with daytime and dinner gowns. Hip-length capes of fur or wool are worn with street costumes. Long cloaks are swept about the most regal evening gowns.

Hip-length capes for both daytime and evening wear are the newest fashion note. They appear in fur, wool and silk treated to new tricks.

Heim uses rich bronze seal and galyak tinted a new gold beige called "chrome" to make striking hip-length capes for daytime wear. Sometimes they are worn with a muff and toque to match, again they appear with wool accessories matching the frock.

Chanel designs hip and three-quarter length wool capes for sports and travel wear. Deep green-ribbed wool frocks and suits appear with loose capes of the same fabric, swinging from the shoulders.

Schiaparelli adds the hip-length cape to the evening style picture, with a striking model of bright Peiping red taffeta having a quilted effect, worn with a slender gown of silver gray satin.

Diadems and Headbands Grace Evening Coiffures

Sweet young things struggling with hair in the "between permanents" stage, find in the evening coiffure a maddening problem. Vionet, Lanvin, and other designers have taken pity on their plight by creating diadems and headbands which transform an ordinary "hank of hair" into a thing of loveliness. The girl with the too-round face will look positively ethereal and Gish-like when she bedecks her tresses with the Russian type of diadem. The woman whose features incline to the classic gains becoming dignity with the Grecian type of headdress. Either is the quintessence of chic for wear with the season's most ravishing evening gowns.

Separate Skirts

There is always a place in the mode for the smartly fashioned separate skirt. It is a favorite of the college girl, for with a skirt or two and enough blouses she can give an endless variety to her wardrobe.

Sanitarium, Sanatorium

A sanitarium is distinguished from a sanatorium by the fact that it is an establishment where the treatment of its patients is wholly or almost wholly prophylactic; whereas a sanatorium is one which is favorable to preserving the health or promoting the health of its patients.

BROWN AND WHITE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

No, this lovely evening wrap is not going to be described as featuring the usual black and white contrast. On the contrary the handsome velvet which fashions this stunning wrap-around short coat is in a deep rich brown. You can scarcely vision how perfectly stunning white ermine is with brown velvet unless you see this wrap which Molyneaux has created in the original. The newest evening colors trend to rich dark hues, especially radiant browns and wine tones and greens so dark they look almost black. There is a new blackberry shade which many designers are using instead of black this season.

Broad Shoulder Fashion Is Marked for Oblivion

Designers are already making provision for the passing of the broad shoulder. It is doomed to die within the next three months, according to their astute reckoning.

One coat maker has evolved a brilliant scheme. He is offering coats with collapsible shoulder peaks. On the day of the broad-shoulder's funeral, all you need do to be in fashion's swim is to remove the padding from the specially treated armhole and have the points stitched down.

Aviation Experts Lay Plans To Span Pacific

American Navy Men Plot Routes—Survey Made Of Hong Kong-Manila Line

Honolulu (AP).—While the saga of world aviation is being written over the Atlantic, United States Navy aeronauts on a tiny island in Pearl Harbor are preparing quietly against the day when the spotlight swings toward the Orient.

With the conquest of the Atlantic well under way, spurred by the Balbo flights, the Graf Zeppelin's cruises and Colonel Lindbergh's oceanic jaunts, it is believed renewed aviation interest is due next in the Pacific area.

Seadromes Needed.

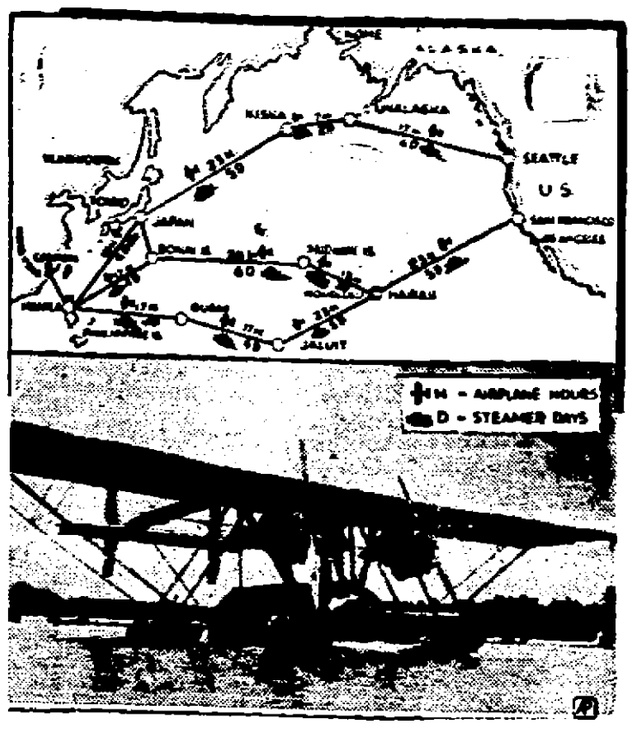

Announcement of plans for a string of floating seadromes across the Atlantic revived interest here in Pacific air routes. Because of the unbroken stretches of water between America and Asia artificial landing places would be necessary, it is held, until the flying radius of planes is extended.

Against advantages of shorter distances between Atlantic points, the better weather of Pacific regions is cited. A trans-Pacific route by Honolulu could expect clear weather virtually the year round.

The immensity of the Pacific would make artificial breaks in the journey necessary with present planes. A map drawn by navy officers on Ford Island, Pearl Harbor, and charted with possible routes, shows that a hop of at least 23 hours would be required on any American-Aria route at prevailing commercial traffic speed.

Two Main Routes.

Using the Aleution islands for refueling bases, local naval authorities estimate a commercial plane could fly from Puget Sound to Yokohama in 47 hours with two stops, one at Unalaska, 17 hours out of Puget Sound, and the other at Kiska.

Possibilities of Trans-Pacific aviation are being surveyed as a corollary of activity in plotting possible service over the Atlantic. The map shows routes charted by American naval officers at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, with comparative plane and steamer times indicated. Below is a huge amphibian at anchor in the Philippines after a flight exploring possibilities of linking Manila to China.

The only other route providing natural mid-ocean bases would require 66 hours. This was computed as 23 hours from San Francisco to Hawaii, 13 hours from Hawaii to Midway Island, 24 hours from Midway to the Bonin Islands and six hours from the Bonins to Yokohama.

The Philippines could be linked to the southern route by a 17 hour flight from Bonin to Manila, or 18 hours from Manila to Yokohama. This route from San Francisco to Manila would be slightly shorter than from San Francisco to Hawaii, to the Marshall Islands, to Guam and Manila.

The navy's computations are based on commercial possibilities, not military. The commercial plane's range may be estimated as its farthest extent, but the military flier must figure not only on reaching his destination but also on returning home, non-stop.

Manila, P. I. (AP).—A network of commercial air lines connecting the chief Far Eastern cities with each other and Europe took form as a distinct possibility of the near future with the flight here of a Pan American Airways survey party from Shanghai.

Almost simultaneously it was learned that a representative of the Royal Dutch air lines was checking the feasibility of linking China and the Philippines with Europe by means of the existing Dutch service between Jama and Amsterdam.

New Line Next Year.

The American fliers came to Manila to determine the practicability of operating a regular service of about 650 miles across the China Sea to Hong Kong, there connecting with air lines in China.

H. M. Bixby, leader of the party, said the opening of the Manila-Hong Kong line was "entirely possible" next year.

With Bixby on the flight here was W. S. Grooch, former pilot on the South American route from Miami, Fla., and W. S. Enmer, radio operator.

Batavia's Dutch Base.

Using an eight-passenger seaplane they made a non-stop flight of 450 miles to Northern Luzon, tentatively determined upon an emergency landing base, and then proceeded to Manila. Before returning to Hong Kong they flew to Zamboanga, Iloilo and other points in the southern Philippines.

M. C. Moes, of the Dutch line, has been making a survey of a possible line from Manila, Iloilo and Zamboanga to Batavia, whence Dutch planes now fly weekly to Europe.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 4—After ripping and roaring like demons unleased, the two days' blow slackened peacefully Friday evening beneath the brightness of the Thanksgiving full moon. Doubtless forthcoming reports will reveal considerable mischief resulting about the reservoir country due to the wild wind's pranks.

The work of opening a channel in the Bushkill stream bed below the Watson Hollow iron bridge to the New York city line is practically completed by the gasoline power shovel operated by Mr. Grunner of Highland. The dredging work both above and below the bridge approximating one-quarter mile each way has taken many weeks.

Ira Nichols of Brodhead Heights, popular town road foreman, was a Main street business caller on Friday afternoon.

Twenty-three Olive properties are listed in the public tax sale notices. Due somewhere to a clerical error the Burgher and Every 120-acre South Mountain woodlot which is a part of the Maple Dell property appears as one of the delinquent parcels. Messrs. Burgher and Every however are "sitting pretty" on the proposition as they have Collector Early North's receipted tax bill paid last January.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Every of Traver Hollow shared their Thanksgiving turkey and accompaning viands with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mooney, of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell of Main street.

Myron Myers of Samsonville road, laid up for many weeks following his late August encounter with the head of the farm dairy herd, is able to be around again.

Among local patrons at the Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., Friday evening card party at Kingston were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Burgher, Judge and Mrs. Lester S. Davis, and others.

Dapper Jimmy Gordon of Brown Station, late of Brodhead, has purchased a brand new shiny de luxe job coach of Ford manufacture. The deal was made through the Kingston Ford agency.

Among Thanksgiving week-end metropolitan visitors of note were a family group entertained at the Watson Hollow Inn, namely the Hon. Joseph Snyder, Mrs. Ida Snyder, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Switzer. On Friday evening the group, excepting Mrs. Snyder, also Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Snyder, the genial hosts, were entertained at the home of Mrs. May Gafkin of Kingston.

Commissioner William Jordan of Brodhead Heights was a Thanksgiving afternoon Main street caller.

It is learned with exceeding regret among friends of the west side that Mrs. Elmer Palen of Shokan is critically ill at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whittier have closed their Tuckaway Farm cottage and returned to their permanent Port Washington, Long Island, home for the winter.

Leonard Colange of Boiceville, who some months ago took over the Park and Pollard feed agency relinquished by Charles Greene of Shokan, is reported as doing well in the venture. Mr. Colange put up a large feed storage house to take care of the carload shipments.

Rotund Chet Lyons, Olive's popular outgoing fourth-term supervisor and veteran Chevrolet dealer, expects soon to have a sample of the 1934 models on display.

The Jordan family of Brodhead Heights entertained Kingston visitors on Thanksgiving.

Due to Judge Lester A. Davis' previous date to attend the O. E. S. Friday night, the town board's scheduled Sunny Cliff sausage and pancake supper was put over till Saturday evening, rain or shine.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palen of Brodhead were among recent community Kingston visitors.

Judge and Mrs. Fred L. Weidner of North Main street entertained Kingston relatives for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Lauren Hesley of Main street is now improving nicely and able to be about the house. Mrs. Hesley is being assisted by her sister, Miss Doris Alexander.

William Colange and Lester S. Davis, Main street store proprietors, will soon have their attractive stock of Christmas goods on display.

Local Kingston High School students are enjoying immensely their long week-end Thanksgiving vacation.

Professor and Mrs. Arthur Condon of Palenville were Thanksgiving afternoon callers here.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Mona Barrie frankly doesn't expect anyone to believe the story of her entrance to pictures.

"It's true," she laughs, "but it's too ridiculous for anyone to believe, really."

In the first place, she passed through Hollywood this past summer, en route from her home in Melbourne, Australia, to England. And (she says) she hadn't considered getting into pictures.

Shrugs For The Cinema

"Really, I hadn't the slightest interest," she will tell you. "I had never given them a thought. My whole interest was in the stage, and I was sure I wouldn't like pictures.

"So I went on to New York, and was going to sail from there in a few weeks for London."

It was in New York that the improbable but certainly possible happened. A Fox scout riding the top of one of those double-deck buses saw a pretty girl—the adjective is ours, not hers—standing there on Fifth avenue, waiting to cross the street, perhaps.

On a hunch he alighted and gave pursuit. She told him she wasn't interested in pictures, but he persisted. And so Mona Barrie took a test, and came back—and is finding that she likes pictures very well indeed.

'Way Down South

The film in which she is working now is "Carolina," a Janet Gaynor-Lionel Barrymore co-starring vehicle, based on Paul Green's play, "The House of Connelly."

The locale is an indigent South Carolina plantation at the turn of the century, and some interesting sets have been constructed.

That the exterior set—an imposing if dilapidated colonial plantation home with tall white columns—is fully half a mile from the interiors—representing the inside of the mansion—will make no difference in the final screening.

Notable—from the standpoint of residents of Mars Bluff, Florence county, South Carolina—is the fact that the general store there has been recreated in Hollywood for the film.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Dec. 4.—Friends here of Mrs. Walter Burland were shocked upon learning of Mrs. Burland's sudden death of Glenford Saturday morning. Mr. Burland for years has been a valued member of the reservoir field force.

Dr. Joseph J. Cosgrove of the village center is riding around in a new LaSalle sedan.

Nicholas Dibbell of Woodstock, who spent his earlier years in Shokan, called on friends here Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Dibbell, now 78 years old, at one time had a carpenter shop along the Butternutkill, opposite the Dr. Bloom place. The shop during the "Eighties" was washed down stream following the bursting of David Furman's dam on the heights. Mr. Dibbell is a son of the late George W. Dibbell, millwright and Civil War veteran, and a brother of William Dibbell of Port Ewen.

Clarence Phillips is employed by George Barclay of Ashokan in the latter's Christmas greens business.

Lewis Thiel has a fine flock of Muscovy ducks of which he is very proud. Mr. Thiel is also keeping a flock of 300 hens and pullets this year at his place along the state road.

John McKelvey was numbered among the invited guests at the big Thanksgiving dinner held at the Conservation Corps Camp at Boiceville.

Mrs. Edward Leyder returned home Saturday from Brooklyn, where she has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Rose Seell. The condition of Mrs. Seell is reported to be much more favorable at this writing.

On Friday, December 5, 1913, the death took place at her home in Woodstock Valley, Conn., of Miss Ruth E. Bloom, aged 75 years. Funeral services were held on December 7 and the remains were brought to Cold Brook for interment. Miss Bloom, a woman of excellent education and quiet refinement, had resided at the old Bloom homestead, latterly known as the John I. Boice place, at Brodhead, until the property was taken for reservoir purposes. She was a sister of the late Isaac Bloom and an aunt of the late Judge Cantine.

Miss Carrie Brooks entertained a few of her friends at bridge at her home in Ashokan last Friday evening.

The snow fences have been put up along the north boulevard between Shokan and Boiceville. Between the residences of Burton and Harry Feeny two fences have been erected on the same side of the road. The schoolhouse road here also has been protected from drifting snow by a fence bisecting the Reformed Church lawn.

George Hogan, one of Shokan's four remaining World War veterans, won a big turkey at the Thanksgiving shoot. George swapped the bird for two ten-pounders and gave one of these to a friend.

Cordwood in large quantities is being hauled to Camp No. 2 from the town of Shandaken in the big camp trucks. Lieut. H. B. Whitman, finance officer at Boiceville, is paying $4.50 per cord for green and seasoned wood at this time. While farmers and other woodlot owners obviously will not grow rich at this price, still a convenient market is afforded for the wood of which both Shandaken and Olive have an abundant supply. Choppers ask from $1.75 to $2.00 a cord for cutting and ranking up the wood, or rather that is all they can get for such work under present conditions. Also, in many cases the cordwood must be hauled to a main road and this sets the owner back around $1.25 a cord.

At last reports, Burtis Wheat and Otto Grossman, Shokan's two men in a boat, had reached New York safely on the first leg of their trip to Miami, Fla. The hardy mariners had some slight trouble with their boat en route down the river but this was fixed up at Newburgh after a brief delay. Messrs. Wheat and Grossman expected to reach Norfolk, Va., Saturday and their families probably will get news of them from that point today or tomorrow.

Nothing further has been reported apropos of the C. W. A. projects in the town of Olive, though a large number of men is awaiting with some impatience the call to work. It was hoped that operations on the Ashokan and Krumville county roads would be resumed last Friday. A similar uncertainty is said to exist in the neighboring towns of Shandaken where on Saturday no word had been received in regard to the jobs up the valley.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Only Yesterday". An emotional story, of women's love and man's forgetfulness, that was 11 months in the making. John Boles is excellent in his part doing some of his best acting. Margaret Sullivan plays the female lead and the two stars are assisted by 93 feature players. Good entertainment.

Orpheum: "The Past of Mary Holmes" and "Out of Singapore." Rex Beach's novel "The Goose Women" has been readapted for screen purposes, and it furnishes the plot basis of the first attraction on the Orpheum double feature bill. Eric Linden and Helen MacKellar head the cast. "Out of Singapore" is wild and scary melodrama, with excitement, treachery, romance, comedy, with Noah Beery and Dorothy Burgess.

Broadway: "I Loved You Wednesday. Elissa Landi as the beautiful young dancer displays some of her best acting. Jilted by Victor Jory, a married man she is in love with, along comes Warner Baxter. He falls in love with her and it is around these circumstances that a very well directed and acted picture works. Good entertainment.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Cradle Song." The lovely and talented star of the German production "Maedchen in Uniform" turns to new fields to conquer in this, her first American film. So much has been said in praise of her artistry that the fact that she scores even more brilliantly in this show is a tribute to her ability. It's the ethereal story of a nun who mothers a child that is brought to the convent. Her love for the child as it grows into maturity, and her efforts to teach and instruct the growing baby is both charming and lovable screen fare. Louise Dresser, Guy Standing and Evelyn Venable also play important parts in the film. Not very exciting or thrilling is this play, but it is most certainly one that contains dramatizations of the highest type, skillful direction and that all too frequent spell of unquestioned reality.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Cocktail Hour" and "Dangerous Crossroads". Bebe Daniels, Randolph Scott, Muriel Kirkland and Sidney Blackmer are all together in this comedy-melodrama that sometimes tries to become a musical comedy. It concerns a successful woman artist who decided to really taste life, so she hikes away to a ship and while aboard she runs into all manner of compromising situations and troubles. The show is fairly fast of pace, and dashes here, there and everywhere before the fadeout. "Dangerous Crossroads" is a railroad thriller that is as melodramatic and heroic as the best of them. Chic Sale and Diane Sinclaire head the cast. For those who enjoy excitement aboard train, this show will please.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands of pile sufferers have not yet learned that quick, safe and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are filled with stagnant blood, weak and flabby. To get rid of Pile misery an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and strengthen the weakened parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt after years of study found a real internal pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and after prescribing it for his patients with a most remarkable record of success, decided every Pile sufferer might get his prescription at their druggist with a money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's remedy is such an effective one that it should help you to quickly trade misery for blessed relief. So why doubt or delay when McBride Drug Stores say "Get a bottle of HEM-ROID tablets today; take them as directed, then if you are not free from all Pile misery, get your money back."—Advt.

Ulster County 4-H Club Report Submitted To The Supervisors

The report on Ulster County 4-H Club work for the year of 1933 as reported by Barnard Joy, county club agent, and Margaret Latimer, acting county club agent, was presented to the Board of Supervisors Monday evening and was as follows:

4-H Club work in Ulster County is conducted under the New York law which allows County Boards of Supervisors to make appropriations to carry on the work. This law also provides State aid to the extent of $500 to each county employing one full time County Club Agent. Federal funds to the extent of $825 is also available. $968.75 Federal funds were added for Assistant County Club Agent. On December 7, 1932, the Ulster County Board of Supervisors passed an appropriation of $2,500 for the conduct of 4-H Club work in 1933. This with State and Federal funds made a total budget of $4,793.75.

The appropriation is made to the Farm and Home Bureau Association which delegates the administration of the work to a 4-H Club Department Board. The composition of this Board is:

Pratt Boice, Lake Katrine.
Mrs. Hugh Furguson, Lake Katrine.
Raymond V. O. DuBois, Gardiner.
Raymond Hasbrouck, New Paltz.
Mrs. Raphael Klein, Ulster Park.
Charles H. Weidner, West Shokan.
Henry Lamouree, Saugerties.
Mrs. Edgar Clarke, Milton.
Miss Emily Burnett, Kingston (representing District Superintendents of Schools).

Exofficio:
Millard Davis, president of Farm and Home Bureau Association.
E. W. Hathaway, treasurer of Farm and Home Bureau Association.

Officers of the Board are:
Chairman, Pratt Boice.
Vice-chairman, Mrs. Hugh Furguson.
Secretary, Mrs. Edgar Clarke.
Treasurer, E. W. Hathaway.

At the June meeting of the Board, Barnard Joy was granted an eight and one-half months' leave of absence beginning, October 15, 1933 and ending July 1, 1934. This was to enable Mr. Joy to accept the 1933-34 National 4-H Fellowship to study in the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Miss Margaret Latimer, of Vivian, South Dakota was employed as Assistant Club Agent for 12 months and as Acting County Club Agent during the 8½ months absence of the regular agent.

Local Leaders.

Sixty-eight volunteer leaders were in charge of the activities of sixty-nine 4-H Clubs. The thirty-six agricultural clubs were led by two men teachers, three women teachers, eight older club members (boys) one other woman, and twenty laymen, mostly farmers.

The twenty-four homemaking clubs were led by three teachers, twenty other women, and one older club girl.

The agent made no attempt to visit the meetings of individual clubs unless requested to do so by the local leader. Programs of work for the year had been worked out by the leaders at meetings with the agent in December, 1932. However, the agent made an average of seven personal contacts with agricultural local leaders and nine personal contacts with homemaking local leaders during the year. This was done through community meetings, county meetings, leaders training meetings, personal visits, and office calls.

The sixty-eight leaders held an average of 14 meetings at which the agent was not present. There was an average attendance of nine club members at these meetings. The average membership of the clubs was eight.

Thirteen leaders training meetings were held during the year, the total attendance was 197.

The programs for the individual clubs for the 1933 year were largely determined by the club and the local leader in conference with the agent. They were planned so as to adapt themselves to the needs of the members of the individual club. No report would be complete without giving the names of the leaders who unselfishly gave of their time for the education of the 4-H Club members. They are: Miss Olive T. Aitkins, Mt. Zion; Mrs. Fred Bond, Milton; Miss Phoebe Cheshire, Flatbush; Mrs. Florence Crocetty, Katsbaan; Mrs. William Carter, Clintondale; Mrs. Theodore Carlson, Highwoods; Miss Jeannette Conklin, Tillson; Miss Anna Devine, Rifton; Mrs. Harold DuBois, New Paltz; Miss Anna DuBois, New Paltz; Mrs. M. General Policies.

Each fall a letter and a county 4-H program are sent to each rural school teacher and trustee in the county explaining the 4-H Club program and asking that the matter be called to the attention of pupils and parents. Beyond this point no attempt is made to organize new clubs unless a request comes from the community. The policy has become one of strengthening the 4-H organization by placing emphasis on holding 4-H members instead of urging the work on new groups who may not be especially interested.

Individual membership is discouraged, as a 4-H worker gets much more out of belonging to a group. However, the agent assists the members of each club in choosing the projects best suited to their needs and situation.

Cooperation With Other Organizations.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Future Farmers Club of Highland, and Juvenile Grange are the other principal organizations to which young people of Ulster county belong.

It is understood that under ordinary circumstances no attempt will be made to organize 4-H Clubs or Scout troops where the other organization is functioning successfully.

The agent is a member of a committee sponsoring a Boy Scout Troop, and as such is an adult member of the organization.

The Y. M. C. A. has given the use of a room for meetings of the Kingston Agricultural Engineering Club. The County 4-H camps were held at Camp Truemaker, the Y. M. C. A. Camp.

The Agent is a member of a subordinate Pomona and State Grange. In a number of communities, 4-H Clubs are permitted to use the Grange hall free of charge. 4-H Achievement and other programs are often held in connection with the local grange meeting. The club agent assists with such meetings. In two communities the 4-H clubs were invited to take a part of the Grange Booster meeting program.

The Holstein Club through one of its members, John Schoonmaker, awarded a Holstein heifer calf to the winner in the showmanship contest at the Ulster County Fair.

The official tester for the Dairy Herd Improvement Association tests the butterfat content of the milk samples of 4-H dairy members each month.

The agent cooperates with the Ulster County Agricultural Society by attending its meetings and acting as superintendent of the 4-H Club department at the County Fair.

The agent is a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club. This club sponsors the annual 4-H Rally Day. All 4-H members of the county are invited to be the guests of the Kiwanians at a picnic lunch.

The agent is a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, and served as assistant superintendent of the Sunday School. He cooperates indirectly with all religious organizations. In several communities church halls are used for special 4-H Club meetings.

School trustees in most communities have granted permission to hold regular 4-H meetings at the school house.

The agent has accepted invitations to speak at four Granges.

The acting agent has given a talk at one Grange meeting, and had charge of the program at another Grange meeting. Application has been made for membership in one of the local Granges.

The acting agent is a member of the College Women's Club of Kingston.

The Farm and Home Bureau Association has been very active in supporting the 4-H program of the County. Most of the local leaders are members of this organization. The agent cooperates at every opportunity. Five leader training meetings in home furnishings and clothing were held at the Home Bureau office. Local 4-H leaders were invited to a Home Bureau Recreational Training School. The Farm Bureau Manager assisted with the instruction at the 4-H Poultry camp. He has also given advice on agricultural matters to the acting agent. The assistant County Agricultural Agent assisted in the conducting of fruit demonstrations for the boys who entered the fruit identification disease and pest contest.

The agent and acting agent have cooperated with the 4-H departments of other counties by exchanging judging of county fair exhibits.

The Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster County offers cash prizes to the 4-H members who raise the most pheasants each year.

In cooperation with the Home Relief Agents of the County, nine 4-H Clubs contributed various types of gifts and made toys to bring Christmas cheer to the homes of the poor. One club did a large amount of sewing to provide garments to be distributed by the Relief Agents.

Program of Work.

The program of work for 1932-33 was discussed and approved by the 4-H Club Department Board.

Poultry, Garden, and Dairy were selected as the major agricultural projects, because they together with fruit raising make up the most profitable agricultural enterprises for the county. Agricultural Engineering projects including woodworking, gas engine, and farm shop, were included among the major projects because they reach a group of boys in school who could not handle the other projects or who wish to take additional projects.

The minor project selected was Forestry. Two individual members carried potato and pig projects.

Homemaking units were chosen from a list prepared by the College of Home Economics. A committee of local club leaders, were asked to state their preference according to what they considered was needed and wanted most. Clothing and Health was selected as the major project, four units of clothing being offered, Sewing Equipment, The Sewing Machine, Undergarments, and Dress or Uniform. Four units of Foods and Nutrition were offered during the year, Food Preservation, Vegetable Cookery, Milk Cookery, and School Lunch. Three units in room improvement were selected for older girls. They were: Arrangement of furniture, Color in the Bedroom, and The Well Dressed Bed.

Garden.

The garden project was started by 134 boys and 7 girls. Of this number 132 boys and 3 girls completed the project work.

These 133 gardens had an average size of approximately 3,600 square feet which gives a total of over 10.92 acres. In these gardens can be found almost all varieties of vegetables, including Italian and Jewish vegetables. Particular emphasis was laid on raising vegetables of high dietary value, such as tomatoes and greens.

The garden project camp was held on May 26, 27, and 28. Forty-five garden club members attended camp. A. J. Pratt from Cornell University was the principal instructor in vegetable gardening. One period was devoted to each of the following topics: Planning the Garden; Varieties and Seeds; Selecting and Preparing Vegetables for exhibition; Fertilizers, Planting, Cultivating and Disease and Weed Control; Vegetable Contest; and the Fruit Project.

Ten garden club members attended State Club Congress held in Ithaca, in June and took courses in gardening.

The agent visited each garden club member and his project during July and August and gave advice where needed. The Agent stressed purchasing vegetable seeds from reliable firms. At the time of his home visits to garden club members he checked kind of seeds used, source of seeds, fertilizers used and care of gardens. The importance of purchasing seeds from reliable sources was brought to the attention of garden club members who exhibited at the County Fair, by the fact that nearly all vegetables receiving prizes were raised from seeds from reliable sources. There were few high class gardens this year as they were badly damaged by dry weather and by common pests.

In spite of the dry weather, there were 353 garden exhibits at the County Fair. Twenty-five of these were garden project exhibits consisting of garden map, record of vegetables harvested, and either three or five plates of vegetables depending on the age of the member. Nine teams of three members were entered in the Garden Judging Contests.

The Wallkill Agricultural Club put on a booth featuring control of Mexican Bean Beetle, cabbage worm, and squash bug in relation to life history.

The value of vegetables raised by club members during the year is approximately $1,100.

Fruit.

An identification of apple variety and insect and disease injuries contest was held at the Eastern New York State Horticultural Society meeting in Kingston for 4-H Club boys and older boys not in 4-H Club work. The agent arranged for a series of ten meetings to train these boys for the contest. William J. Clark, assistant agricultural Agent of Ulster county and Milo Winchester, agricultural instructor of the Highland High Schol cooperated in giving this instruction. The agent spent a good deal of time in arranging for the contest and assisting at the Horticultural Society meeting.

At the time of the Horticultural Society meeting, January 25, 26 and 27, the agent cooperated with the Farm and Home Bureau agents in putting on an educational booth, featuring canned fruits by 4-H Club girls and variety and disease identifications.

The Ulster County 4-H team took second place in the contest and had first and third high individuals.

On August 8, Ulster County Club members gave a radio program entitled "Protecting Orchards from Insects and Disease Injuries", over station WGY, Schenectady.

The Agent served on the State's Agents Committee to plan a fruit project for 1933-34.

Fruit work is offered as a minor agricultural project in the 1933-34 Ulster County 4-H Club program.

Agricultural Engineering.

Sixty-seven boys in six communities enrolled in the Agricultural Engineering project which is one of the regular Cornell Farm Study Courses. The eight lessons in Farm Shop included: Knot tieing, long splice, rope halter, soldering, belt lacing, pulley principles, electric wire splice, and refinishing furniture. Fifty-six members completed their work and received certificates from Cornell.

There was one woodworking club in the Wallkill High School with 12 of the 14 members completing their work, which included: rip saw, and cross cut saw work, tool sharpening, making a tool and nail box caring for tools and rafter framing.

Ten of the 14 members of the Ulster Gas Engine Club of Kingston, completed their work in studying parts of a gas engine, gas engine principles, details of the gas engine cycle, taking the engine apart, to remove carbon and replace piston rings, grinding valves and ignition timing, and studying governors.

Agricultural engineering clubs conducted two demonstration booths at the County Fair, one showing woodworking, and the other soldering.

Although specialist help was used for teaching these projects, the agent spent considerable time also in instructing these groups.

Minor Agricultural Projects.

One club member was enrolled in the potato project and completed his work.

Ten club members in addition to their other projects took the forestry project. They were all first year forestry members, and each planted 1000 trees and cared for them. 1500 Norway spruce, 2,000 red pine, 500 balsam, and 500 black locust were planted by these ten members. Nine of these club members completed their projects.

One member carried the pig club project and completed his work.

Poultry.

The agent has encouraged membership in poultry clubs, as poultry has proved one of the most profitable enterprises of the county.

The poultry project was started by 32 boys and 3 girls. Of these 26 boys and three girls satisfactorily completed the project. This covered the raising and care of 24,622 birds. White Leghorn is the breed owned by the largest number of members—followed by Rhode Island Reds, Barred Plymouth Rocks, and White Wyandottes, with a few members raising Black Leghorns, Black Minorcas, Buff Orpingtons, Columbia Wyandottes, Silver Laced Wyandottes, Mixed Breeds, Ducks, Geese, or Guinea hens. Of the members reported grade of stock raised six had R. O. P. stock, nine certified, one supervised, three purebred and one mongrel.

A home egg laying contest was conducted during the year in the county. 34 different members sent in reports for one or more months. Thirteen members completed the contest by sending in all 12 reports. The highest average production per bird was 280 eggs on a flock of 15 White Leghorn pullets. This is an average of 25 eggs more than the highest average in last year's contest. Second place was a record of 251 on a flock of 30 White Leghorn pullets.

Ulster county entered two pens in the New York State 4-H Official Egg Laying Contest this year. George Schneider of St. Remy had the high pen at the end of the 51 week contest. His eight White Leghorn birds laid 1319 eggs with 1325.55 points. He also had the high individual bird in the contest who laid 286 eggs with 266.8 points, and the second high bird whose production was 267 eggs with 264.05 points. The other Ulster county pen of White Leghorns placed ninth with one individual hen holding 10th place in the contest. Three pens have been entered in the 1933-34 contests. Adult poultrymen who have cooperated in sponsoring these pens in the laying contest are: I. J. Kauder, New Paltz; Claude Kieffer, Flatbush, and William Mehrman, Jr., Saxton.

The agent served as assistant superintendent in charge of the 4-H Egg Show at the Hudson Valley Poultry Exposition in March. Ulster county members exhibited eggs and won several premiums. There were 144 dozen of eggs exhibited. The 4-H clubs joined the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau in putting on an educational booth. In this booth 16 different girls from seven communities gave twenty different demonstrations on the use of eggs.

On June 2, 3, 4, a project camp for poultry and dairy club members was held. There were 33 poultry members in attendance. Mrs. L. A. Dawley, 4-H specialist of Cornell University and Barnard Joy, County Club Agent gave instruction in preparing poultry for market and in judging poultry and eggs. Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau manager discussed disease control. A judging contest was held. (A complete camp program is included in the illustrative material).

Nine poultry club members attended State Club Congress in Ithaca and took part in poultry classes during the three days.

During Christmas vacation the agent visited all poultry club members whose flocks were in production and checked up on flock management and egg marketing and gave a demonstration on determining egg weights. The agent visited all poultry members and their projects again in July. Wherever needed, helpful suggestions and criticisms were given.

On July 15, four club members and the County Club Agent took part in a 4-H radio program in which poultry was the topic over station WGY.

In the 4-H Department of the County Fair, 148 birds were exhibited and ten dozen eggs. About fifty birds were exhibited by club members in the open classes. One poultry club put on a demonstration booth.

Forty-four poultry entries were made at the State Fair. They won one championship, one first, four seconds, three thirds, four fourths, and three fifths.

Two poultry club members were delegates to Camp Pyrke at the State Fair.

One poultry tour was held in which the farms of two outstanding poultry breeders were visited.

A county poultry judging contest was held on August 25 with six teams of three members each and four individual members taking part. One member was entered in the State Poultry Judging Contest in Ithaca on November 17.

Two poultry club members placed in the New York State Essay Contest for 4-H poultry members. Ralph Penny, Wallkill, received as an award fifty O. P. B. chicks and Hayward Mitchell, Rifton won 25 certified chicks.

Robert Brown, Wallkill, won two second prizes on his Buff Orpington cockerel and pullet at the New York Madison Square Garden Poultry Show.

One Ulster county club member has been requested to enter one dozen eggs in the New York State 4-H egg exhibit, at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Two members were requested to make individual exhibits of one dozen eggs each at National Club Congress in Chicago.

Poultry club members realized a profit of more than $3,200 exclusive of prizes on their project work.

Dairy.

There were 28 boys and seven girls enrolled in the dairy project. Of this number 26 boys and six girls completed the work and filed their reports. Holstein-Friesian is the most popular type breed followed by Ayrshire, Guernsey, Jersey. Club members owned 18 calves, 11 heifers, and 12 cows during this year—a total of 41 animals.

Of the clubs of the county, two entered the Holstein Calf Club contest. The Rondout Calf Club placed fourth, winning, $12, and the Wallkill Calf Club seventh, winning, $6.

Individual members entered the Holstein Feeding and Management contest. One Ulster county member received honorable mention for placing fifth. Total winnings in the two contests were $30.75.

During the winter a picture judging contest was conducted with the pictures and results of the Hoard's Dairymen contest. Thirteen members took part.

On June 2, 3, and 4, the dairy project camp was held in conjunction with the poultry camp. Fifteen dairy club members attended. Prof. Gutherie of Cornell University conducted instruction periods in barn scoring, milk flavors, and Babcock testing for butter fat. (Program included in illustrative material).

During the year the agent visited each dairy club member on an average of three times. The clean milk program was conducted this year with the help of Prof. H. J. Brueckner, of Cornell University. The agent also emphasized keeping better records particularly in regard to registration and production records of dam.

Through the cooperation of the Ulster County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, 4-H Dairy members have been able to keep production records for their animals. Wendell Knapp, tester for the Rondout Valley Division of the Association has given special cooperation in testing many of the samples of milk.

At the County Fair, 4-H members had 22 dairy animals on exhibition. Eighteen of them either had dams with known production or were in production themselves. Four teams of three members each and two individual members took part in the Dairy Judging Contest. H. A. Willman of Cornell University conducted a dairy showmanship contest in which 15 members participated. A calf was given as a prize to the winner by the Ulster County Holstein Club through the courtesy of John Schoonmaker.

One dairy demonstration booth was put on by club members at the county fair.

Four dairy animals were sent to the State Fair. One fifth premium was won. The dairy judging team also entered the State Judging Contest at the State Fair.

One Ulster County Dairy Club member was awarded the 1933 G. L. F. Exchange Scholarship giving him $50 to apply on the 12 week dairy short course at Cornell University.

The profits from dairy animals owned by 4-H members total approximately $2,000 for the year.

A County Dairy Committee consisting of 4-H members, dairymen, representing the different breeds, and veterinarians has been appointed to assist in formulating a specific County Dairy program for 4-H Clubs in 1933-34.

Handwork.

All the first year 4-H agricultural club members who completed their project work also completed the following seven exercises:

1. Learned the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and learned how to salute the Flag.
2. Learned the 4-H Club Motto and the 4-H Club Pledge.
3. Made a display board for 4-H membership sign.
4. Made a bulletin case in which to keep bulletins and record sheets.
5. Started an experiment book.
6. Learned to make six knots and hitches or made a bird house.
7. Learned five common breeds of poultry.

All the second year 4-H Agricultural Club members who completed their project work also completed the following seven exercises:

1. Learned the requirements of a Standard 4-H Club.
2. Made a simple test for soil acidity with litmus paper.
3. Learned the meaning of fertilizer formulas.
4. Learned to recognize the common breeds of dairy cattle.
5. Made a rope splice.
6. Finished the end of a rope by whipping one end and another end by crowning.
7. Planted at least one tree or shrub.

Third year and more advanced members did not have the detailed parts of their yearly program laid out. They are asked to choose some special problem in which they are interested. Some of the suggestions for this problem which was carried out are:

I.—Record Keeping.
a. Dairy.
b. Poultry flock.
II.—A second Project.
a. Farm Shop.
b. Forestry.
c. Other Projects.
III.—Special Construction.
a. Poultry equipment.
b. Dairy equipment.
IV.—Take part in a Special Study.
a. Apple varieties, insects, diseases.
b. Poultry management.
c. Clean milk.
V.—Leadership Responsibilities.
VI.—Home Studying and Reading.
(Many subjects were included).

All 4-H Club members are encouraged to keep an experience book for their club activities. Suggestions for arrangement of these books were sent from the County Club Office to all club members of the county.

Homemaking.

A county committee of local homemaking leaders met with Miss McDermott of the State 4-H Club office and discussed available homemaking units. From a list of units prepared at Cornell University, they chose four foods units, four clothing units and three room improvement units for the county program.

Each homemaking club chose as its project for the year three units from this list of four foods and nutrition, four clothing and health, and three room improvement. The room improvement units were planned especially for third year girls or those over 15 years of age. Local leaders attended training meetings in Kingston at which specialists from Cornell University outlined the material to be taught. Each member of the club was expected to complete the three units of work chosen by her club.

There were 25 homemaking clubs in the county this year with an enrollment of 284 girls. 245 girls completed three units of work. The total number of clubs majoring in the three phases of homemaking is greater than the total number of homemaking clubs, because some clubs have members in different years of club work. Therefore these clubs are taking two different majors.

Ten homemaking clubs majored in foods and nutrition, nineteen clubs majored in clothing, and nine clubs majored in room improvement.

Foods and Nutrition.

Sixty-four girls enrolled in foods units, 59 completed the requirements. Summaries of Record of Achievement Sheets are included in illustrative material. A summary by subprojects follows:

One girl attended foods classes at State Club Congress in June.

There were 54 exhibits of foods work at the County Fair. Three teams of three members each took part in the foods judging contest which included—judging canned tomatoes, vegetable plate menus, school lunches. One demonstration booth was devoted to foods subject matter, "Vegetable Cookery."

Four foods entries were made at the State Fair and received the following awards: two firsts, and two fourths.

Three delegates to State Club Congress in Ithaca attended clothing classes.

There were 203 exhibits of clothing at the County Fair. Ten teams of three members each competed in clothing judging including—the judging of holders, laundry bags, and aprons. One county style review champion was selected. One demonstration booth featured sewing equipment.

Four entries were made at the State Fair. These exhibits received one first and two third premiums.

Estimated savings of clothing club members gained by making their own garments is $200.00.

The girls ranged in age from 13 to 19.

Secrets of Sleep.

79 members completed the project.
The girls ranged in age from 11 to 18.

Two leaders training meetings in home furnishings were held.

Eighty-five girls who attended Older Girls Camp received instruction in home furnishings from Mrs. Nancy M. Roman of Cornell University. The topics she discussed were:—"What Furniture is Worth Refinishing," "Removing the Old Finish," and "Woods Worth Refinishing in Natural State." Instruction and practice in preparing wood for finish was given by the County Club Agent.

There were 77 exhibits in home furnishings at the County Fair. Six teams of three members each competed in judging—room arrangement, curtains, and quilts. Three demonstration booths featured home furnishings subject matter. The girls demonstrated "Color in the Bedroom," "Making a Comforter for 4-H Girls' Bed," and "Refinishing Old Furniture."

Six entries in home furnishings were made at the State Fair. On these exhibits two second and one third premium were awarded. The estimated saving to girls who carried the home furnishing project is $400.00.

Health.

Health Habits, Growth and Physical Condition. Foods Habits records were filled out by the homemaking club members who took foods work. This work was started at a meeting at the beginning of the club year and completed at the end of the club year. Health conditions of each member were checked at the end of each unit completed. (A summary of this is attached.)

A little more than a week previous to each camp each 4-H Club member received a Health Sheet. On it were recorded the members Foods Habits for each day of a week. Each contestant was to secure from his teacher the report of his health doctor. Height and weight was also recorded and questions concerning vaccination, for smallpox and anti-toxin for diphtheria were asked.

The 4-H Clubs of Ulster county joined with the Health Authorities of the county in promoting Tuberculin testing. On the health sheet, each member was asked whether he was willing to be tested for tuberculosis. Permission of the parent or guardian was also required before this test was given.

Dr. George Weber, of the County Tuberculosis Hospital assisted by the County Tuberculosis nurse gave 105 tests. Fourteen members reacted positively and were given further examinations.

Dr. E. Criswell, a local physician, gave complete physical examinations to 125 club members, (81 boys and 44 girls). One boy and one girl were declared County Health Champions.

The County Health winners were entered in a State Health Contest held in Kingston. In this contest the Ulster county boy took third place, and the Ulster county girl took second place. The agent secured two local doctors to give these examinations.

In cooperation with the American Red Cross, Frank Haercher, Field Representative of the First Aid and Life Saving Corps, spent five days in Ulster county and gave a demonstration at each of six community meetings. This demonstration included first aid in case of accidents and resuscitation. The agent also took a course in First Aid from Dr. Hartsel of the American Red Cross. He is now a qualified Senior Red Cross First Aid Instructor.

Pheasant Raising.

The New York State Department of Conservation made a special offer of 45 pheasant eggs to 4-H members whose applications were approved. 42 Ulster County Club members received the eggs. From these eggs 250 pheasants were raised, and liberated at seven weeks of age. The Conservation Department paid 75 cents per bird liberated. Also the Ulster County Federated Sportsmen's Clubs offered $25 in prizes to the ten club members who raised the most pheasants.

Community Activities.

Frank Haercher, Field Representative of the First Aid and Life Saving Corps of the American Red Cross spent five days in the county and gave a demonstration at each of six community meetings. All club members of the county had an opportunity to attend these meetings as they were held in centrally located communities.

R. A. Polson, head of the Department of Rural Social Organization spent one day visiting Ulster Park Community, while he was making a special community study.

April 21 was the time planned for a community night in each community. In most communities 4-H members and their parents and friends gathered for a short program and to listen to a radio address by Prof. G. F. Warren of Cornell University.

The agent spent considerable time in arranging for the presentation of the Operetta "Sun Bonnet Sue," in several communities by the Rifton 4-H Clubs. The money earned was used to send thirty Rifton Club members to State Club Congress.

During October, and November the clubs of each community held an achievement meeting. In most communities a program was given by the club members, at Grange meetings, at the school house or home of a local leader. 29 such meetings were held, and exhibits of 4-H work brought to most of the meetings. The acting county club agent attended all of these meetings and awarded the achievement pins given by the New York State Bankers Association.

County Activities—Week-end Camps.

During May and June, four week-end project camps were held. Club members register on Friday after school and spend Friday night, Saturday and Sunday at camp. The total attendance was 262 club members. Attendance by camps, including staff and leaders was: younger girls, 68; older girls, 88; poultry dairy, 55 and garden 51. (See illustrative material).

Rally Day.

County 4-H Rally Day was held on May 13. There were 400 club members present and many parents and friends including members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club and their wives. Ice cream and cookies for the picnic lunch were furnished by the Kiwanis Club.

Publicity.

A two page news letter is prepared each month and sent to each 4-H Club member. The agent prepares news items, and stories for newspapers of the county each week. Beginning in November a series of stories on the achievement of outstanding 4-H Club members of the county are being prepared for the newspapers.

Radio.

Ulster county participated in the regular Saturday noon 4-H radio programs broadcast over Station WGY Schenectady. Three Augustprograms were given. Ten boys and three girls took part in these programs. On July 15, four boys discussed the poultry project. Insects and diseases in apples were discussed by four boys on August 5. "All Work and No Play" was the topic of the broadcast on November 25. Three girls and two boys gave suggestions for winter recreation for 4-H Clubs.

Organization.

The Ulster County 4-H program attempts to provide activities which will develop the boys and girls themselves, as well as giving them training of a subject matter nature.

Most important among these activities are training in cooperation, self expression and parliamentary law. Club members learn to conduct business meetings properly. Over 1398 such meetings with an attendance of over 11,667 were held during the year.

Club members assist in planning the yearly program for their clubs. They are given responsibilities such as planning and acting as chairman of 4-H community meetings.

Participation in County week-end camps, rally day, county fair, State Club Congress, State Fair camp, provides opportunity for cooperation, social contact with other club members, and recreation, all of which develop the club members.

Some older club members have taken leadership responsibility for 4-H Clubs composed of younger members.

Miscellaneous.

During the past year a request for 4-H Club work in the New Paltz Training School of the Normal School came to the 4-H Office. The Agent spent some time in arranging and carrying out a 4-H program for these students. This was a special project as it was not organized on the same basis as other clubs. Farm Shop was offered to seventh, eighth and ninth grade boys, and homemaking to the girls. The work was done during regular class periods, the homemaking was conducted by the practice teachers and Farm Shop and handwork by the Club Agent and practice teachers.

This was not an altogether satisfactory arrangement. The class periods were too short to do the work well. Some members were enrolled who were not interested in the work. And a change of practice teachers every ten weeks provided disconnected and poorly trained leadership.

Change of leadership made it difficult to secure records of completion.

The Training School Clubs will not be carried as a special project during the next year. Those boys or girls who wish to continue 4-H Club work are to be organized into regular 4-H Clubs with local leaders who will continue with them throughout the year. Their project work will be done at home, although regular meetings will be held during school time.

Outlook and Recommendations.

Plans for 1933-34 have been adopted by the 4-H Club Department Board. They do not include a campaign for greater membership but the extension of 4-H Club work to every community that requests it, and the holding of as many as possible of the older club members.

Five units in foods, and five in clothing will be offered. Major emphasis in agriculture will be placed on the poultry, garden and dairy projects.—Agricultural Engineering is one of the major projects for boys who are in high school or out of school. This includes woodworking, gas engine, and automobile mechanics. Minor projects include fruit, bee keeping, forestry, swine, potatoes, and handwork.

County week-end project camps, 4-H Day at County Fair and community meetings will be continued. County Achievement Day in October will take the place of Rally Day previously held in the spring. The county intends to continue participation in State Club Congress and State Fair programs.

Emphasis will be laid on higher quality of work in all projects and greater accuracy and promptness in reporting 4-H project work.

An effort will be made to interest more parents in the 4-H activities, by holding parents meetings in each community during January, February, and March. These will be regular 4-H meetings with some added entertainment features. The parents will be invited to see how a 4-H business meeting and instruction period are conducted and to see the work already done by club members, and not merely to be entertained by the club.

Health work will again be stressed for both boys and girls.

Fourth and fifth year club members will be encouraged to add new projects and activities which require them to assume responsibility.

To encourage participation in community and county events, and to encourage completion and reporting of project work, a 4-H community contest has been started. Points are given on a percentage basis so that the large and small clubs have an equal chance of winning.

Summary.

Training in agricultural or home economics; good membership; citizenship; participation in well conducted business meetings; leadership; cooperation; and in recreation and health are some of the contributions which 4-H Club work has made to the education of 517 boys and girls in Ulster County who completed their projects in 1933. Besides the very important educational value of club work, 4-H members also show a substantial gain in dollars and cents. As each member submits as part of his report to the County office, a profit and loss statement, it has been possible to compute actual earnings by 4-H members for the year. They amount to approximately $9,100. Although homemaking members do not have as much opportunity to earn money on their projects as the agricultural members do they have made a considerable saving by canning and preparing food at home and by making their own clothing, and refinishing their rooms themselves. This saving is estimated to be $900.

The enrollment for 1933 was 570, a slight decrease over 1932. The number of members completing their work is 517 for 1933 as compared to 478 in 1932. The percentage of completion is 90.5%. General financial conditions probably account in part for the decrease in percentage of completions.

The success of club work in the County is largely due to the fine work of 68 volunteer local leaders. They meet with their clubs and helped members with their projects. They also guided the business meetings and recreational activities of the clubs. They attended leader training meetings and community and county meetings and assisted with the county week-end camps.

Through the efforts of the County Club Agent, in cooperation with local people various other opportunities were offered Ulster County 4-H members. During the winter months community meetings were held at which first aid lessons were given. The agent showed educational moving pictures at various regular and special club meetings. Club members were encouraged to plan and put on their own local achievement meetings. Parents were invited to hear the program, see exhibits of club work done and to witness the awarding of the achievement pins. In some communities these meetings were held as part of the program at Grange meetings.

In the spring county week-end camps were attended by 38% of the members. These members received instruction in dairy, poultry, gardening, clothing, foods or home furnishings. They met other boys and girls and participated with them in judging, style review, serving buffet supper, camp fire programs, singing, games, and swimming.

Most clubs earned all or part of the money to send their members to County week-end camp. One community earned enough to send 30 of its club members to State Club Congress. There they put on their Operetta, "Sun Bonnet Sue."

Out of the County trips such as radio broadcast at Schenectady, State Club Congress at Ithaca, State Fair Camp at Syracuse, State 4-H Judging Contests, National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago are special privileges that a few older and more outstanding club members enjoyed.

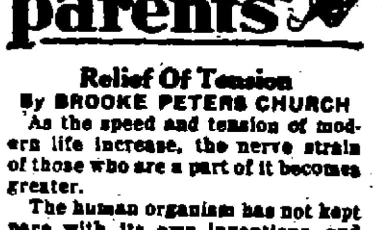

One Ulster County dairy club member was the winner of the G. L. F. Exchange Dairy Scholarship offered in 1933. This enables the winner to take a 12 weeks dairy short course at Cornell University at Ithaca.

One County representative was selected to receive a trip to the National Club Congress in Chicago.

Programs vary from community to community and from member to member as an attempt is made to find a program which fits as nearly as possible the individual needs.

During 1934 a continued effort will be made to bring to rural boys and girls a 4-H educational program which will add to their self-development in citizenship and leadership and preparation for successful and profitable farming and homemaking.

The report is accompanied by statistics of membership, etc.

Relief Of Tension

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

As the speed and tension of modern life increase, the nerve strain of those who are a part of it becomes greater.

The human organism has not kept pace with its own inventions, and unless it finds in its bag of tricks something to alleviate the pressure, it is headed for more and more nervous breaks among its most highly organized and sensitive members.

The promptest and surest remedy is sleep. But the ability to sleep requires training, and preferably training in childhood. Simply to make children take naps is not enough, for in time they develop a resistance to the enforced rest which continues through life and defeats the purpose of the remedy.

Families who pride themselves on being night-owls, who claim as a special virtue the power of getting on with less sleep than the average, and who declare that their best work is done after midnight, are setting up ideals of sleeplessness in their children.

Lack of sleep creates a very real poison in the system, a toxic condition which may in the end cause real trouble.

In young people this is especially true, and often shows itself in muddy and spotted complexions, stringy, lusterless hair, and general irritability. The average adolescent would be in better shape if, instead of giving up sweets or fancy foods, he took more sleep.

Half the fretfulness of babies, the tantrums of little children, and the emotional crises of the 'teens could be avoided by a little more training in sleep and relaxation.

The physical need of sleep, its effects, and the evils resulting from too little or broken sleep should be made quite as clear to children as the value of a balanced diet or fresh air.

One English Pope

There never was an Irish pope, but there was one Englishman, and there have been a good many of other nationalities than Italian. The English pope was Adrian IV. He was born Nicholas Breakspear, about the year 1100, near St. Albans, Hertfordshire. He was raised to the papal see in 1154, and died in 1159.

PSYCHIC DOUBLE FAILS

By TOM O'NEIL

Some players with distributional but little high card strength are prone to double an opening bid for the purpose of misleading the partnership with the better cards in the hope of preventing a game contract.

Such a double is risky. It lays the doubler open to a double of himself or of his partner, who may be deceived.

Also at times it will mark cards for the contracting side so that a contract succeeds which normally would fail. In illustration is a hand which Mrs. Florence Osborn played at the Deschapelles Club, New York:

NORTH (Dealer)
♠ A Q J 2
♥ 9 8 5
♦ A K
♣ K 7 6 4

WEST
♠ K 9 7 5 3
♥ A 6 4
♦ J 8 5 2
♣ Q

EAST
♠ None
♥ Q 10 3
♦ Q 10 9 7 6 4
♣ A 8 5 2

SOUTH
♠ 10 8 6 4
♥ K J 7 2
♣ J 10 9 3

Mrs. Osborn, sitting North, opened the auction with one spade and East doubled. Lacking spades, East was prepared for any response West might make. He thought there were possibilities of scoring for his side if West should have strength and, at any rate, of hindering the opener.

South redoubled, first because of his fit in spades, his singleton diamond and possibilities of the hearts and clubs; and second because he knew that East liked to make doubles without quick tricks.

West bid one no trump, a bid which eventually proved the undoing of his partnership. Two diamonds was the real bid with his cards. The one no trump marked the spades. The singleton club mitigated against a good no trump contract.

North passed in order to let South speak again as the redouble indicated willingness to do. East had to run to his diamonds.

South then showed support for the opener's suit by bidding two spades. West assisted the diamonds to three. North said three spades. East passed and South carried the spades to four which West doubled.

East led the queen of hearts and the king was played from dummy. West refused to cover, hoping to block entrance to dummy. North played the eight-spot. From South the ten of spades was successfully finessed. A low club from South was followed by the queen West, king North and ace East.

East led the ten of hearts, which was covered by the jack and ace. North played the nine. West led a low spade, which North had to take.

North led a club which West ruffed. West then led a diamond only to find North with the ace. North put herself in dummy with a heart, finessed against the king of spades, then dropped the king with the ace. The defending side made only one spade and the heart and club aces.

The Bears' Punishment

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Before I do anything," Willy Nilly said to Rip, the Dog, "I'll have to punish those Bears. Just think of the work I'll have to do all over again gathering food for the store room. The cold weather has really set in, too."

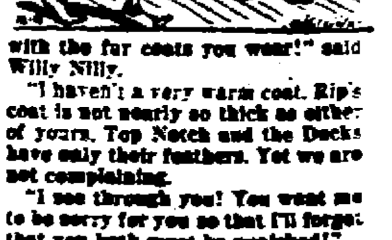

"What are you going to do to them?" barked Rip.

"I'm going to send them to bed without any supper."

"Brr, but it's cold," growled Jolly Bear as he came up to Willy Nilly's porch, followed by Honey Bear.

"Brr, it's freezing," growled Honey Bear.

"You should be ashamed of yourselves to be complaining of the cold with the fur coats you wear!" said Willy Nilly.

"I haven't a very warm coat. Rip's coat is not nearly so thick as either of yours. Top Notch and the Ducks have only their feathers. Yet we are not complaining.

"I see through you! You want me to be sorry for you so that I'll forget that you both must be punished!"

"What are you going to do to us?" asked Jolly Bear, placing a paw on Willy Nilly most affectionately.

"There, there, don't try to make me give in," said Willy Nilly.

"I've made up my mind I'm going to punish you, for you certainly deserve it. You must both go straight to your cave and to bed without any supper. If I feel you're truly sorry in the morning you may have a good breakfast."

Jolly Bear and Honey Bear looked at each other wisely. They knew what they were going to do, but off they went to the cave.

Officials Honor Discoverer Of Famous Babcock Milk Test

Stephen M. Babcock's Test Called Fundamental To Modern Milk Industry

By CHARLES H. BALDWIN
Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets Albany, New York

A short time ago a group representing state and local governments assembled at an isolated and untenanted farm house on a slight hill between Utica and Bridgewater to dedicate a marker commemorating the birthplace of one of the greatest benefactors of the milk industry and milk consumers of State and nation.

This man was Stephen Moulton Babcock, who discovered and put into use the Babcock test which makes it possible to determine quickly and accurately the amount of butterfat in milk, butter, cheese and all dairy products. It is difficult to imagine how the modern milk industry could be carried on without the test.

Protects Milk Supply

Nearly 50 years before this quiet ceremony in Oneida county, a committee of farmers from St. Lawrence county representing the producers of milk, and, strangely enough, at the same time a Committee from New York City, representing milk consumers, appeared before the state legislature for the redress of their grievances. The consumers complained that their milk was blue and short of its natural butterfat, and that their butter contained fats that did not come from a cow. The producers' complaint was that some unscrupulous individuals watered their milk and colored it with chalk, to the detriment of honest dairymen.

One of the earliest Babcock testing machines

As a result of these complaints, the State Department of Agriculture was established to inspect and regulate milk production and distribution and protect the interests of both producer and consumer.

It so happened that at this time young Babcock was employed as first chief chemist at the New York State Experiment Station at Geneva. His education had been the best that the schools of this State, this country and Europe could provide, and he was just beginning the experimental work on milk which later led to the brilliant discovery of the milk test which bears his name today.

Dr. C. M. Babcock, inventor of the famous Babcock milk test

What the Test Is

This test shows the amount of butterfat in milk through a chemical reaction of the solids in milk with concentrated sulphuric acid, which liberates the butterfat. The fat is concentrated in the narrow calibrated neck of the test bottle by whirling in a centrifuge. It can then be measured with exactness.

This simple, practical test of Dr. Babcock's, is one of the most important scientific aids that make it possible for consumers of milk in New York City and the New York State milk shed to enjoy the most rigidly inspected and scientifically protected milk in the world.

9 Cases Settled In Supreme Court Here

December Term Convened Monday When Alfred Marble Was Selected Foreman of the Grand Jury—Judge Loughran Presides.

The December term of supreme court was convened Monday afternoon at the court house with Judge John T. Loughran presiding. Alfred Marble of Rochester was selected as foreman of the grand jury, Harry Wells of Saugerties was named assistant foreman, and Myron Bedell was selected by the grand jurors as their clerk.

At the call of the grand jurors, 23 answered to roll call and none asked to be excused.

There was equally high percentage of trial jurors in attendance. Only two failed to answer when their names were called. One was reported dead by Sheriff Saxe and Reginald Every of Mt. Tremper failed to answer although he had been served. The sheriff was directed by the court to ascertain why Mr. Every had failed to appear. But six jurors asked to be excused.

Chris J. Flanagan, chairman of a committee appointed from the Ulster County Bar, presented a resolution on the death of Robert J. Howard, one of the younger members of the Ulster County Bar, who recently died. The resolution was directed spread upon the minutes of the court and a copy sent to members of Mr. Howard's family. The resolution was presented by Mr. Flanagan, Arthur Ewig and Roscoe V. Elsworth.

Trial Jurors Excused.

The following trial jurors were excused from service:

Harold Bollin, Wawarsing; Leon Faulkner, Shandaken; Leonard Ford, Shandaken; Claude Haynes, Hardenbergh; Charles Vandermark, Gardiner; Clinton B. Yerry, Shandaken. George W. Saile of Saugerties was excused until Wednesday.

The following day calendar was made up and court recessed until 2 o'clock today:

549-550; 35-A-607; 36-A; 141, 177, 178, 184, 185, 188, 194.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 5 (AP).—Stocks and grains awakened from their recent slumber today and stepped out into the sunshine of rallying prices.

Although the domestic gold rate was again unchanged, equities began to improve when wheat opened up and other cereals and cotton firmed. Wheat, corn and oats recovered 2 or more cents a bushel in the early hours. The dollar moved indifferently in foreign exchange dealings. Sterling and French francs were unchanged to slightly higher. Bonds were a trifle mixed, although improvement was recorded by various secondary liens. U. S. government securities were a little easy.

Industrial stocks showed the most vitality in the upturn, with gains of 1 to around 4 points predominating. Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak advanced about 4 each, while issues up 1 to 3 included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, American Can, Columbian Carbon, Goodyear, Western Union, Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Canada Dry, Johns-Manville, Chrysler, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Santa Fe Common and Preferred, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central and Pennsylvania. American Can and Allied Chemical touched new highs for the year. Volume was about double that of yesterday.

Followers of the rail shares were encouraged when directors of the Santa Fe declared a dividend of $5.50 on the preferred stock. The last previous payment on this issue was $1.50 in June. The stock formerly was on a $5 annual basis.

Although the administration's monetary policy continues to hold the principal attention of financial circles, investment commentators are beginning to call attention to signs of a pickup in business and industry. Reports of the chain stores for November, now beginning to appear, disclose a substantial advance in trade. The W. T. Grant Co. showed a sale volume increase for the month of 4.9 per cent over the 1932 period. The volume of the S. S. Kresge Co. was 6.2 higher and that of the F. W. Woolworth Co. advanced 2.8 per cent.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 282 Wall street.

Government Learns 'Who' in Brewery Case

Gordon Lieutenant, Found Slain, Had Papers Showing Financial Operation of Briggs Distillery—Officials Silent on Information Disclosed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP).—United States District Attorney Richard Templeton said today the government had learned the identity of the "real operators" of the distillery found in the Briggs brewery at Elmira. He would not reveal who they were.

Templeton made his announcement in connection with presentation of the case to the grand jury here. This began yesterday and Templeton said it would not be completed "for some time."

The name of Waxey Gordon, called by prohibition authorities one of the big liquor and beer distributors of the east, has been connected with the Briggs case from the start, chiefly because of papers concerning the distillery found in the hotel room where Max Greenberg, Gordon henchman, was slain. These papers included financial records showing the operation of the distillery. Templeton refused to say whether Gordon, under ten-year sentence for income tax evasion, was considered one of the "real operators."

A special effort will be made during the coming year to have a fine program at all of the meetings.

Gold Price Remains Same.

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP).—For the fourth successive day the government kept its gold price at $34.01 an ounce. This quotation for the newly mined domestic metal was set last Friday and represented a new high. Just previously the RFC price had been lifted 25 cents. The London price on the basis of sterling opening at $5.12⅛ to the pound was $32.16 an ounce for bar gold.

Eagle Was on First Coin Issued by United States

When the bald eagle was up for discussion as to its being placed on the seal of the United States, says Scientific American, Benjamin Franklin opposed it and offered the American wild turkey as being more distinctly American than the Caesarean old hawk. The eagle won and was adopted on June 20, 1782, as an emblem for the great seal; it was also placed on the first coin issued by the United States, in 1785.

This same old bird has been held in reverence and superstitious regard as well as used in symbolism, and heraldry, and depicted in all methods of art expression known to the North American aborigines back in prehistoric times.

As one of the outstanding totemic animals, the eagle gave its name to many clans, tribes, and fraternities, religious and otherwise, in North America. Nearly every clan or gens had an eagle emblem at some period in its history—it was depicted on pottery, basketry, textiles, beadwork, quillwork, shields, crests, totem poles, house and grave posts, pipes, rattles, and nearly all objects pertaining to cult and ceremony of many old tribes.

Darkness Makes Plants Groggy

When night comes, plants go to sleep, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. That is, in the sense that during darkness one of the principal life activities of all plants is suspended, that of manufacturing starches and sugars from water and carbon dioxide. All plant life, with the exception of certain lower forms, is dependent upon sunlight for growth. The green coloring matter of the plant, chlorophyl, is able in some mysterious manner to utilize the radiant energy of the sunshine in the formation of raw materials for the plant's growth. The carbon dioxide of the air and the moisture from the soil, plus sunshine, are the basic materials from which all vegetables, trees, fruits and flowers of the world are fabricated. When nature turns off the sunlight each day, the process, called photosynthesis, stops. The sunlight factory closes up. In this respect the plant may be said to sleep, although the substances made during the day are used during the night by various parts of the plant.

Richert Case on Trial, Court Room Cleared

Judge Excludes Public Under Provision Which Permits in Cases Where Public Decency So Demands—Will Sentence Peter Gill Friday.

The John Richert case which has been before the county court for several days and has met with several unusual circumstances was finally taken up for trial this morning before Judge Traver and a jury. The jurors had been selected when difficulties began to arise. Various things intervened but the jurors were held. Finally when the case was ready for trial a week ago a further adjournment was taken, when the father of defendant died suddenly.

Today the case was moved for trial at 10 o'clock with the court being held in the supervisors' room which had been converted into an improvised court room. Before the trial was taken up Peter Gill, charged with rape, second degree, entered a plea of guilty to assault, second degree, and Judge Traver announced that sentence would be imposed Friday at 2 o'clock. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for defendant. Bail was continued.

At the suggestion of Assistant District Attorney Haver, joined in by Daniel Hoffman, counsel for defendant, all spectators were cleared from the court room, only members of the press and witnesses or others interested in the case were permitted to remain. This was done under a provision of the law which permits a judge to exclude the public in cases where public decency so demands. Mr. Haver stated that by reason of the charge against Richert the testimony would naturally be such as to endanger the public decency and he requested the court to exclude spectators and others not directly interested. Judge Traver granted the request.

Richert is charged with abuse of a female child over 10 years of age and under 16 years. The alleged act, it is charged, took place in the city of Kingston in the North Front street section and involves a young colored girl and a white girl.

The one young girl whose testimony was desired in support of that of the complaining witness disappeared just prior to the trial and it was for this reason that one adjournment was taken. The witness was located through the efforts of the Troopers and the Sheriff and she is in attendance at the trial, being held as a material witness since she was located.

Daniel Hoffman appears for defendant.

The case will be a short one as few witnesses will be sworn by either side.

JUDGE LOUGHRAN SPEAKS AT ALBANY ELKS' SERVICE

The Albany Knickerbocker Press of Monday says:

With Supreme Court Justice John T. Loughran of Kingston as the principal speaker, the annual memorial service of Albany Lodge of Elks was conducted Sunday night in the lodge rooms. Surrogate Edward G. Rogan, exalted ruler, was in charge of the ceremonies.

Speaking on the beauty and simplicity of the memorial service, Justice Loughran declared "we have in these services no purpose to adventure ourselves with purely metaphysical abstractions, nor do we now indulge in any futile attempts to sanction mere sentimentalism. We are persuaded that the sensations which excite us at this moment are vital and important, but it is not supposed that I am to be so presumptuous as to endeavor to reduce them to any combination of words."

There are certain "croaking philosophers," the justice said, who would take all passion and reality from life and all dignity from sentiment. "They have pilloried the simple folk who inhabit the households of the American main street. They would deride the feelings that move us now," he said.

In the philosophy of life of the late members of the order, there was no room for such misanthropy, Justice Loughran declared. Rather, they believed that intelligent optimism, deliberately chosen, is a loftier thing than the most clever portrayal of our frailties and weaknesses:

"Their conviction," he said, "was that human nature is instinct with a sense of fairness, and that there is a valid basis to our common trust in each other."

"Sahara," Correct

"Sahara" is the Arabic word for "Great Desert" and "Sahara desert" therefore is incorrect. Simply "the Sahara" is all that is necessary. Likewise one should say simply Victoria nyanza or Lake Victoria, for "nyanza" is a native African word meaning lake.

Taxpayers Discuss Salaries, Budget

Object To Being "Shoved Into a Corner" For Their Meeting—Budget For 1934 and Salary Cuts are Chief Topics.

With six different organizations holding meetings at the city hall Monday evening Janitor Dave Brown had his hands full trying to accommodate all and keep peace in the family. He succeeded in the former to the extent of finding locations for the various meetings, but when it came to keeping peace he wasn't so successful, particularly when the members of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association arrived and found that the city court chambers, their regular meeting place for the first Monday in the month, had been assigned to the Hairdressers Association. Protesting groups gathered in the main hall and voiced their opinion, not altogether complimentary, until past the regular hour for meeting. About 40 of the members finally made their way to the Board of Public Works room and at 8:30 President Jay Terry called the meeting to order.

The first business taken up was the naming of a committee to nominate officers for the coming year. The president appointed Elmer E. Swart, Max Reben, Arthur J. Burns, Mrs. F. D. Church and Fred Richter.

Andrew Ferguson, for the committee to consider the desirability of erecting a junior high school, read a letter from George M. Wiley, assistant commissioner for secondary education, as to the general desirability of maintaining such schools and referring to certain publications giving information and details.

75 New Members Added

Ernest M. Hicks, chairman of the committee on membership, which has been conducting a campaign, reported that during the past two weeks about 75 new members had been added to the association, in addition to many tickets that were still out and on which no report had been made. He said that the big source of possible membership had hardly been touched and added that the events early in the evening had showed the necessity for securing a membership that would command respect. He said that the contempt in which the association was held by employes of the city was shown by the action which had resulted in their being shoved into a little room on the second floor, while their regular meeting place was taken over by a new and small organization. He urged all to get busy and secure a membership that couldn't be "shoved into a corner."

Fred Richter brought up the matter of a general reduction in salaries and suggested a petition on the part of tax organizations throughout the state for legislative action in that respect. Andrew Ferguson objected on the ground that a reduction in salaries in many cases would be made up in increased expense otherwise and would also mean inefficiency. He thought there was more need of cutting waste in departments of government and for more economical administration of the courts.

Canfield Talks of Budget

Palmer Canfield brought up the matter of budget reduction and said that he believed, from an analysis of the budgets of the past three years that the budget for 1934 can be cut below the amount of the past year's budget. He said that a total budget of $800,000 ought to provide for the carrying on of the work of the city, giving a tax rate of not over $35. He saw a possibility of saving in the estimate for the Board of Public Works, in view of the aid to be secured from the federal government and also thought there should be some cut in home relief appropriations.

Mr. Canfield also took the position that at this time no attempt should be made to pay all bonds falling due, but that part of them should be refunded. He mentioned particularly $25,000 in city hall bonds which fall due and which could be refunded.

E. P. Ward, for the budget committee, reported that the committee hoped to have a full report ready for the January meeting of the association. He discussed the matter of saving by cutting salaries and agreed that the waste there was comparatively small and quoted a Milwaukee mayor who said that a cut of 25 to 50 per cent in salaries would not keep one home from being sold at mortgage foreclosure. Mr. Ward also suggested that the city adopt the plan of creating a surplus fund to be drawn on in anticipation of taxes and then repaid when taxes came in, thus saving the necessity of paying high interest rate on short time obligations.

At this time Mr. Hicks asked what proportion of the city budget was made up from salaries and asked if it was true that most cities had made salary cuts. Mr. Canfield said that it was difficult to answer the first question off-hand, but he believed that, including all workers, skilled and unskilled, salaries constituted perhaps half the budget. He added that many cities had made salary cuts.

To Go Over Salary List.

The suggestion was made that if possible the name and monthly salary of every employe of the city, including school teachers, be published. There was objection to this proposition, Mr. Ward holding that the layman could not know, even if salaries were published, who were earning their salaries and who were not. He thought it might be an advantage for the budget committee to have that information for consideration and on motion of Chauncey Lane a committee consisting of Arthur J. Burns, Peter Fisher and Andrew Ferguson was named to go over the city salary list and cooperate with the regular budget committee.

After suggestions by Mr. Canfield that a stadium to cost about $50,000 be built at the high school as part of the civil works program, and one by Mr. Fisher that the sidewalks of the city be repaired as part of the program, the meeting adjourned. All members were present the Common Council meeting this evening.

Tiano Elected Captain Of High School Team For '34

Monday Marco "Mac" Tiano, brilliant right halfback of Kingston High School varsity, was chosen by his teammates to the captaincy of next year's football team.

Tiano, one of the members of "Kingston's Big Three", composed of himself, "Jas" Cullum and "Ed" Burgevin, is one of the fastest backs and best punters in this section, narrowly missing All-DUSO honors this year. In scoring Tiano ranks with the leaders having scored touchdowns in the Peekskill and Middletown games which were rated as two of the toughest on this year's schedule. In the Middle contest with the ball on the four yard strip and the score 6-0 in Middletown's favor, Tiano took the ball and on an end run galloped over the goal line for the score that tied the game. In the Newburgh game on Thanksgiving Day it was Tiano who got off the longest run of the game, one of 40 yards. He eluded the whole Newburgh team with the exception of the safety man who just managed to trip him and stop a brilliant run which undoubtedly would have resulted in a score. Tiano was the hardest hitting tackler on this year's Kingston team.

With this star at the helm, Kingston High should head for another championship DUSO team next year. The prospects for next year's team are of the best as Kingston will have its entire forward wall intact with the exception of left end which will be left open by the graduation of Tony Debrosky, captain of this year's great team. The backfield will be hit the hardest with the graduation of "Jas" Cullum, "Ed" Burgevin, "Pop" Saelhoff and Bill Van Derzee. However, with Tiano, first string halfback, and Pirie and Hopper who have been active in games this year in the backfield, Kingston should have a team that will be a leading contender for the DUSO crown in 1934.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The balance of All-American football power remains in the Middle West, whether or not the East and South like it or the Far West cares to admit it.

This situation seems fair enough, for the intersectional record of the teams scattered over the plains from the Alleghanies to the Missouri valley is as good this year as anything we have ever noticed. They must have the talent.

The Big Ten is the "toughest league" in college football, the Pacific Coast Conference included. There are no set-ups in the Big Six or among a dozen other teams of the "Independent" class, such as Detroit, Michigan State and Marquette. The only door-mat among the big midwestern teams this year, strangely enough, is Notre Dame, but even this is no sign of inherent weakness or a sudden lack of man-power.

West Lauds Linemen

The Far West this year emphasizes its line play, especially among the California "Big Three." The Northwest's answer to this is that Stanford, California, U. C. L. A. and Southern California have no ball-carriers of the calibre of Mikuluk and Temple of Oregon or Red Franklin of Oregon State.

In the South, the backs have been getting most all of the ballyhoo that has not otherwise been concentrated on Duke's great tackle, Freddie Crawford, Grant and Key of Georgia, Roberts and Bryan of Tulane, Howell of Alabama, Feathers of Tennessee, Kercheval of Kentucky, Dixon of Vanderbilt and Earl Clary of South Carolina—who can also claim the distinction of coming from Brian Bell's home-town of Gaffney—have been grabbing the headlines in Dixie.

The East, too, has been noteworthy mainly for its backfield production, including the whole Army backfield and individual stars like Danowski of Fordham, Lassiter of Yale, Montgomery of Columbia, Clark of Dartmouth, LeVan of Princeton and Randour of Villanova.

Beating Back

No matter whether the corn growers of the Hawkeye state are staging a come-back or not, the University of Iowa's football fortunes definitely have moved back into the upper level this season.

"The depression hit with its full force on that May morning in 1929 when Iowa's argument with the Western Conference became an open break and a matter of public record," recalls one of our Iowa scouts. "A lot of water has gone over the dam since then, however, and Ossie Solem took command and in his second year produced a team that has a vast majority of the commonwealth's population chinning about football on the street corner, the drug fountain and the cigar store.

"It has all been a pleasant revelation to the thousands of citizens who had all but forgotten football because of the situation at Iowa City. Somewhere the boys acquired new life, the old defeatism attitude was wiped out and along came Dick Crayne to give the club the required spark. Solem, of course, deserves the major share of the credit."

All of which leads to the suggestion that Captain Tom Moore, Iowa's center, and Francis (Zud) Schammel, Iowa's right guard, are two of the main individual reasons for the Hawkeye showing and two of the Big Ten's offerings in the All-America debate.

Chicago—Johnny Phagan, Chicago, stopped Pee Wee Jarrell, Fort Wayne, Ind., (5); Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh, stopped Carlo Moreno, Kalamazoo, Mich., (6).

Columbia Accepts Stanford's Bid For Game in Rose Bowl

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP)—For the first time in the 18 years of the annual rose fiesta, a New York city football team will parade its prowess in the garland garnished stadium New Year's Day.

Columbia University made it possible, accepting Stanford's invitation to participate in the intersectional gridiron classic January 1, 1934.

There was little surprise over the announcement which was made here yesterday by Al Masters, graduate manager of Stanford, since the report that Coach Lou Little's Lions had been invited last week leaked out 24 hours before the acceptance statement was released.

Some Dissatisfaction

There was, however, more than the usual expression of local dissatisfaction over the team selected, born of the fact that only one of the nine eastern teams to participate in the annual festival of football ever went home victorious. Two of the remaining eight games ended in ties.

Southern California, predominantly of middle western extraction, voiced an opinion that a team from the prairie states might have been more acceptable, especially since only two representatives from that section ever made an appearance. The West won one of these and lost the other.

And the South had its say too, for it alone holds the edge over the Pacific Coast defenders with three victories, one defeat and a tie.

Something in Common

Stanford and Columbia have something in common in this situation, however, because the Rose Tournament committee's choice of Coach Tiny Thornhill's stalwarts was not given universal approval.

Stanford wanted Princeton but the Tigers couldn't come. Neither could Michigan, unofficially understood to be one of the favored teams. Army, Duke, Navy and Nebraska also were mentioned as possible opponents. Then Columbia was invited.

As in the case of Columbia, which lost one game this season—a 20 to 0 defeat by Princeton — Stanford's slate was not clean. The Indians were held to a scoreless tie by Northwestern and were defeated by Washington, 6 to 0.

How Big Chance Came

Built around a group of big fast sophomores, the Stanford team stepped into the Rose Bowl picture by defeating Southern California 13 to 7 and went on to win the selection with its 7 to 3 triumph over its arch rival, California.

While Bobby Grayson, a fleet 187-pound fullback who calls the signals, is the running and passing star, the blocking of Robert (Bones) Hamilton, a halfback from Sewickley, Pa.; the quick kicking of Frank Alustiza, first year quarterback; the sterling end play of James (Monk) Moscrip, from Adena, Ohio, and the accurate field goal kicking of All-American Bill Corbus, captain and guard, went a long way toward putting Stanford into the annual holiday game.

Coach Tiny Thornhill said practice would be renewed at Palo Alto this week. He also promised to collect information on Columbia's team immediately.

"Of course I know something of what to expect," he said. "I played with and against Lou in pro football."

Important Meeting Of Yellow Jackets Tonight At Legion

A very important meeting of the Yellow Jacket football squad will be held in the American Legion Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Several important matters will be discussed, including whether the team will play another game this season. Hudson is anxious to appear here again and Catskill would like to play the Jackets in Kingston or on its own gridiron.

BILLIARDS

Fred Planthaber defeated Bob East in the first block of their 300 point match at Nick's Monday night by the score of 103 to 84. High runs were Planthaber 13, East 12. Tonight the two will meet again.

Contestants listed for the city championship contest in which Tony Gentile will defend the crown he won last year are Gentile, Stan Wojcio, Fred Planthaber, Julius Tellier, "Hotch" Alcon, Clifton Quick, Tony Pino, Steve Kaslich, Bob East, Kenneth Craig, Billy Hopper and Palmer Brodhead.

Missing from the array of contestants this winter is Charles Bove, the "Old Maestro," whose exhibition safety play against Julius Tellier in the first match of last year's billiard race will be remembered long by those interested in the pastime who saw the contest. Bove died from the results of a recent automobile accident.

GRAPHIC GOLF

PUTTING SUGGESTIONS

IN TAKING the putting stance the player should make sure that he is not standing too close to the ball. Oftentimes golfers are stooped so far over that they are looking back at their feet instead of outward at the ball, their body tensed and not relaxed. With the eye looking forward one is better able to keep the hands on the inside of the line of play and also gain the proper path to the hole. The clubface is closed and the arc of the stroke kept low to enable a sweeping stroke. With this long, low arc the tendency to hit the ball on the upstroke is minimized. Although hardly noticeable, there is the same weight transference here as in other shots. This enables the left hand to travel further to the left, insuring a longer, flatter arc.

Airedale Terrier Knows No Fear of Wild Animals

The Airedale Terrier is endowed with inherent qualifications for training. In his native England he serves in all those roles credited to the Shepherd strains in Germany. His war record as sentry and message bearer is a matter of record; widely heralded have been his Red Cross activities.

But his "bag of tricks" extends in scope far beyond these publicized acts of heroism. Without fear of anything that walks or crawls, he is constantly employed in far-off Africa in the courageous task of hunting the lion. In the mountainous regions of America, the bear and wild cat know well the ferocity of the Airedale. Lithe, compact and fast, he handles these tasks with a decided matter-of-fact playful attitude.

His classification, "Terrier," has been challenged often because he does not go to earth—there being no animal habitating the underground worthy of his mettle. Largest of the terrier group, he weighs 45 pounds and stands 23 inches at the shoulder. However, above ground he performs every task of the terrier in a very excellent manner. As a water dog, he is in his element, and properly trained, a perfect gun-dog. His grizzle-badger coat, waterproof, is of two-tone hair, the lower portion gray, the top, black.—Los Angeles Times.

Lightship Placed Where Lighthouse Does Not Fit

Lightships are located at strategic places along the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf ports. Their greatest advantage over a lighthouse is their ability to occupy stations where lighthouses could be built only with tremendous difficulty and at great cost. Also they may be readily shifted to new stations when a shoal "drifts" or important trade routes are changed. Their greatest disadvantage is their high cost.

From fourteen to sixteen men (the usual crew of a lightship) stand regular periods of duty, consisting of two months on and one month off. Many of the men prefer not to take their leave in this fashion and stand much longer periods of duty, saving up their periods of relief and taking off several months at a time. Their goings and comings are made possible by the two seacoast tenders attached to the district headquarters. These ships also carry fuel and provisions to the lightships in the area and check up on the aids to navigation along the way.

Life aboard the lightships is no sinecure. There is plenty of work to be done, for the lightship is becoming a more and more complicated mechanism. While on duty the men are divided into watches, the period of which is contingent upon the number of men available for duty in the crew.

London's Smallest Theater

London's smallest theater consists of a single room and holds an audience of 25 people. It is situated over a shop in a West End mews, and has a stage seven feet high and no dressing rooms. It is the London Marionette theater, and during its existence its owners have made and clothed all its puppets. Performances are given once a month and there is no charge for admission, a collection being taken during the performance.

POULTRY FACTS

FREEZING IS BEST FOR PRESERVATION

Quick Method Is Favored by U. S. Specialists.

Ducks, chickens and other poultry preserved by quick freezing and held in cold storage six months or more are scarcely to be distinguished from fresh killed birds in both appearance and taste, according to United States Department of Agriculture specialists who are experimenting with this innovation in the processing and marketing of poultry.

The quick freezing system has possibilities and may put former methods into the discard since the birds can be frozen in about two hours as contrasted with 36 to 48 hours by slow freezing. Quick freezing yields a better product.

The bureau of agricultural economics and the bureau of chemistry and soils in the Department of Agriculture are working jointly on the project. In the experiments, Long Island ducks and other poultry were frozen by the use of a fog or mist of brine at zero degrees below zero. The ducks and larger classes of poultry required about three hours to freeze, and the smaller sizes of chickens about two hours. The quick-frozen birds were then rinsed with clear water and dipped in ice water which formed a thin film or glaze of ice over the carcasses and protected them from desiccation or freezer burn during the period of cold storage.

After six months of cold storage, samples of the quick frozen ducks and of ducks frozen by the slow process were subjected to bacteriological and chemical analysis. The quick frozen ducks were found to be distinctly superior to the slow frozen ducks.

Other poultry similarly handled were held in cold storage for about seven months. The glaze endured well during this period and upon removal from storage, the poultry was found to be entirely free from any drying out of the skin or freezer burn.

Need Codliver Oil in Addition to Sunshine

In "Facts for Farmers," an annual report of the experiment work conducted by the Wisconsin experiment station, repeats the conclusions previously arrived at, that, while winter sunshine has considerable vitamin D potency, it does not furnish enough of that factor in an ordinary poultry house with glass windows to insure maximum egg production and good hatchability. It states that further tests made last year show that the winter egg ration should be supplemented with about 2 per cent of codliver oil or sardine oil, which, in each year's tests, has given as good results as codliver oil.

Irradiated yeast supplies vitamin D, the same as codliver oil, but it needs to be mixed with the mash at the rate of only one-half of one per cent. However, it is more expensive so that, on a cost basis, the codliver oil is still the most practical carrier of vitamin D for the poultryman in use.

Poultry Chatter

There should be sufficient nests provided as well as plenty of perches.

* * *

Feed costs amount to about 60 or 70 per cent of the cost of poultry production.

* * *

Oats are considered an excellent food for poultry, but they must be what is known as "heavy" oats, the light, chaffy sorts not being recommended.

* * *

A five-pound hen requires the equivalent of 50 pounds of corn a year for maintenance. This much feed she must have for body upkeep before any eggs laying can follow.

* * *

Even if free range is available, hens should not be expected to forage for all their feed. A supply should be kept always available at the poultry house to supplement the feed obtained on the range.

* * *

Poultry or eggs are produced on more than 5,400,000 farms in the United States, which has about 6,000,000 farms in all states.

The color and quality of yolks of eggs can be improved by feeding plenty of green food, such as chopped green barley hay, green alfalfa and kale.

* * *

When egg prices are high and the margin between first grade and poor quality eggs is wide, farmers secure a distinct advantage in selling on grade.

The United States turkey crop last year is reported as being around 15,000,000 birds.

Chicks multiply their size 8 to 12 times during the first 8 or 10 weeks of their lives. Therefore it is essential in good management to provide plenty of space.

* * *

The only method birds have of getting rid of parasites is thoroughly to impregnate the feathers with fine dust, and dislodge their adults and eggs by shaking.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCES AT NEW PALTZ M. E. CHURCH

New Paltz, Dec. 5—The Sunday school service at the Methodist Church on Sunday, December 3, was carried through in the usual manner, and the morning church service sermon subject by the pastor, the Rev. Danger of Pollution.

The State Department of Health sent a communication that a report had been made of an inspection at the county farm. The water system and sewage disposal had been inspected. The water supply was reported as ample, being taken from a reservoir in the creek. However the report stated that since there was considerable drainage from the highway and farm lands into the creek that there was danger of pollution. This condition it was suggested be immediately remedied. As to the sewage disposal the report stated that the sewage was discharged into a small creek which emptied into the Wallkill creek. This it was stated was a violation of the health law and it was suggested that the sewage be treated before it was discharged into the small creek. The department suggested plans be submitted for correcting this condition. It would be possible the report stated to secure a Federal grant of 30 per cent of the cost of such work and the remaining 70 per cent of the cost of such work could be financed from the Federal government at a rate of interest of 4 per cent.

The reports were received and referred to the committee on Commissioner of Public Welfare.

Ask Appropriation For Blind.

A request for an appropriation for the needy blind was received from the State Department of Social Welfare with a report of the work done in 1933.

This report stated that an appropriation for 1933 had been made of $7,600 and that thus far $5,712 had been expended. The communication asked for an estimated amount of $7,800 for 1934. At present there are 23 active eligible applications in the county, 11 ineligible applications, 6 waiting investigation. Needy blind over 70 are referred to the Old Age Pension. The report was referred to the committee on appropriations.

Supervisors Stanbrough, Lyons and Terwilliger offered a resolution that there be raised on the county the sum of $9,820.47 for state tax for armory purposes. Also that there be raised on the county the sum of $9,046.89 for court and stenographer purposes. Over under rule.

County Highway Projects

Supervisors Stanbrough, Dusinbere and Charlton offered a resolution that $32,000 appropriated by the board under the highway law be made immediately available and be expended for county highway purposes on the following roads:

Project No.	Road No.	Amount
18	63-a	$ 700
18	63-b	2500
23	68	1000
26	71	650
28	73	1000
29	74	4400
30	75-a	400
31	76	850
33	78	2000
34	79	2000
36	81	600
37	82	500
39	84	800
41	86	2100
42	87	1700
43	88	500
44	89	7500
45	90	1100
46	91-b	250

Supervisor Terwilliger asked before voting on the adoption of the resolution just what the resolution meant. He said he did not understand what it was intended to do and asked if this money was to be spent for work now in addition to the work to be carried on under the relief program. He said he thought the relief program took care of the situation.

He was told that the appropriation called for work to be done now.

The resolution was adopted.

Supervisor Markle offered a resolution that there be raised on the town of Rochester the sum of $1,560 to be placed in the general fund for general town purposes. Over under the rule.

Supervisor Wright moved that $500 be raised on Marlborough for general fund to be expended for general town purposes. Over under the rule.

The various committees which are still functioning were notified to get busy and clear up their work. Dates were set for several committees to work.

TB Hospital Report.

Before recessing until Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, Dr. Frederic Holcomb was given the privilege of the floor and presented his annual report of the work carried on at the TB Hospital during the past year. The report was received and filed. The board then adjourned.

COTTON CONSTANT COMPANION OF MAN

Has Earned Right to Be Called King of Textiles.

Washington.—Cotton prices, cotton surpluses, cotton production, consumption and export figures, new uses of cotton, and, more recently, new regulations by the federal government limiting cotton-growing acreage, keep America's best known fiber constantly in the public eye.

Why the great public interest in cotton?

"Because about one-tenth of the population of the United States, and many score millions of people on every continent, depend upon cotton for a livelihood and, because it is indispensable to modern civilization," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Go where you will, by any means of transportation in the civilized world, and cotton will be your traveling companion. Step into an automobile and you are supported by tires containing cotton fabric. You sit on upholstery that probably contains cotton threads, and are protected by a top to which cotton contributed.

Can't Get Away From It.

"Or go yachting. Your ship, no doubt, will be equipped with cotton awnings, hatch covers and 'linens.' Or try to evade the fiber by climbing into an airplane. You will discover that cotton fabric corers the airplane wings and that cotton dissolved in chemicals is the 'dope' that protects the wings from wind and weather. The engineers of our railroad trains wear cotton overalls, and the window shades and seat covers of modern passenger cars once were a part of the snow-white landscape of a cotton field. Even old Dobbin still wears a cotton-lined collar, and the buggy he occasionally draws may have a cotton top and bits of imitation leather here and there that cotton helped produce.

"Stroll down 'Main street' of a modern town and cotton in many forms strolls with you. You pass men who wear cotton from their hatbands to the linings of their shoes. In white, black and all the colors of the rainbow, you observe cotton ties, hose, shirts, suits, collars, uniforms, overcoats, and shoe laces. The feminine companions of the cotton-clad men wear hats and dresses, and carry umbrellas of cotton.

"A glance at thousands of bolts of cloth on department store shelves reveals that between the time cotton leaves the plantation and reaches the retailer, it assumes many disguises. For instance, if you purchase calico, cretonne, corduroy, or chintz, you are buying cotton. And the same goes for a long list of textiles from apron cloth, batiste and cambric through the alphabet to velveteen and voile.

"In a typical American home, cotton has earned the right to be called king of textiles. Step over the threshold and your foot may alight upon a cotton rug; pictures hang on walls covered with cotton cloth; you relax in a chair upholstered with cotton and listen to a phonograph record which contains cotton, playing a recent 'blues' song inspired by life in the Southern cotton belt. Within eyeshot are cotton draperies, window shades, sofa cushions, and chair and table covers.

"In the dining room perhaps the table 'linen' is cotton or part cotton, and cotton wicks protrude from artistically designed candles. In the kitchen one may discover a cotton bag for crushing ice, a cotton mop, cotton wiping cloths; and perhaps cotton had some part in the manufacture of the linoleum on the floor and the oilcloth on the table. Open the pantry door and again you find cotton. One of the newest methods of packing small quantities of oranges, potatoes, and onions is by the use of coarse mesh cotton bags. Of course the housewife long has bought sugar, salt and flour in cotton bags, as well as cheese with cotton covering.

No End of the Uses.

"Perhaps the bedrooms contain more cotton than any other room in the home. Cotton sheets, pillow cases, quilts, and blankets for beds are widely used, while in men's and women's wardrobes are handkerchiefs, underwear, night clothes, lounging and bath robes, and house slippers of cotton. In the bathroom hang cotton towels and wash cloths, and a cotton shower curtain, and in the medicine cabinet is fluffy cotton itself as well as bandage gauze.

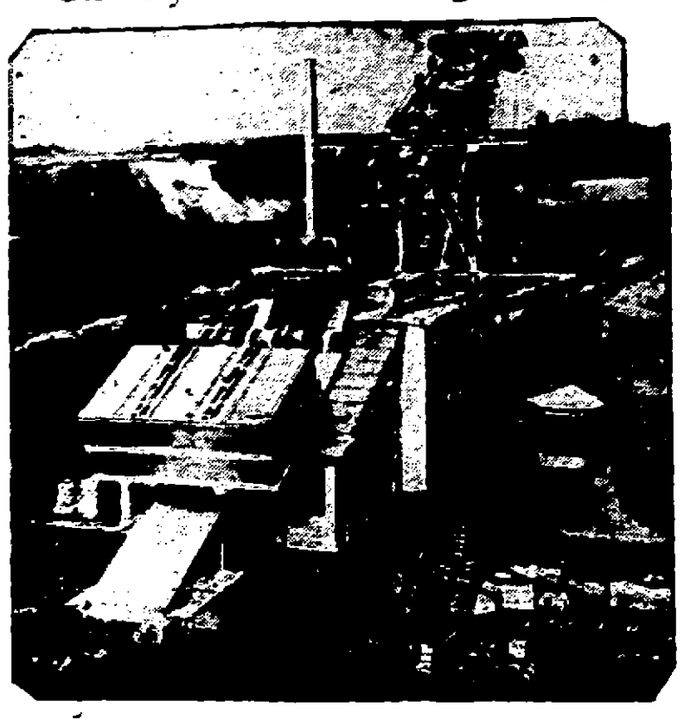

"On the bathing beach cotton bathing suits and shoes are seen; at boxing matches boxers swing cotton padded gloves; at football games, cotton-lined shoulder pads protect the players; at the movies spectators view pictures projected from cotton-made films; tennis players wear cotton shoes; on golf links cotton flags fly on every green; and at the baseball park, cotton-covered bags mark three bases of the diamond.

"Cotton bagging for cotton bales is taking the place of jute bagging to a slight extent in some parts of the country.

"One who holds in his hands a pound of light, fluffy cotton, will find it difficult to realize that about 12,000,000,000 such handfuls were produced on the world's cotton plantations last year. Pressed into so-called farmers' bales, those handfuls would make about 24,000,000 bales.

"More than 40,000,000 acres, or an area nearly as large as Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Connecticut, combined, produce American cotton."

Germany Has World's Largest Dredge

THIS dredge, the largest ever constructed, has been placed in service in the coal fields of northern Germany. The great scoops dig out more than 1,000 carloads of coal per day. The enormous machine is moved on railroad tracks and it combines many safety features. Should a sudden storm arise it can be folded and moved into a position where strong winds will do it the least harm.

Ardonia, Dec. 5.—All are asked not to forget the play, "Silas Smidge" that country "bumpkin" from "Turnip Ridge," County Clay in "Ioway". A good laugh will be gotten out of Neurasthenia Twiggs (Helen Rhinehart), a stage struck hired girl, and her bashful lover, Oswald Twiggs (Walter Hyatt), also, Simplicity and Thaddeus McPheeters (Hazel Seymour and Emmett Hyatt), and Simplicity's fiance, Silas Smidge (Frank Miller), and from little misjudged and mistreated Judy (Edith Paltridge), Wayne Kendall (Eddie Rhinehart) notorious gangster, husband of sweet and loyal Enid Thornhill (Kathryn Ross) who believes her husband dead and becomes engaged to Ben Bruce (Dick Coy). Enid's brother, Ralph Thornhill (David Manse) is a young minister. Miss Florence McPheeters, that sophisticated young lady (Ethel Courter), a perpetual trouble-maker, and Miss Armitage, Judy's aunt from Virginia (Margaret Hoffman), all help to make the play very interesting. The cast, under the direction of Albert Yeager of Modena, is working hard to make the play a success and hopes to appear before a full house. The play will be given Thursday evening, December 14 at 8 o'clock, in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, Modena.
